Free Field Trips ... Ed Board OKs Trip Proposal

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

Students will not be charged for transportation or other costs when a field trip is scheduled as part of the school day or required as part of the instructional program, the Lincoln Board of Education decided Tuesday evening.

The board adopted a new policy statement on field trips and activity trips, at the Principals' Council recommendation, on a 5-0 vote. Board President T. E. Dewey was absent.

The new policy allows students, parents and teachers to plan extended or special field trips, provided supporting funds raised avoid individual charges to students.

No Force Allowed

Each student eligible for such a special trip must have an equal opportunity to participate, and students cannot be forced to participate beyond regular school time against their wishes, according to the new policy.

"We have an indefensible position," Supt. John Prasch told the board, "when we tell (a student), 'You have to bring a dime' to participate in a school-related activity."

Students may be charged to meet some expenses on optional trips after school hours, he said.

Athletic Trip Same

Schools will be allowed transportation time on the basis of enrollment and available buses. Athletic-related trips will be handled as before by the activities director.

The policy states school buses will be unavailable for activity trips beyond 150 miles of Lincoln, one way. Prasch noted school buses are not "over-the-road" vehicles.

The new policy continues to allow parents to use privately owned automobiles for field or activity trips, under specified circumstances.

Prasch also presented the board with two preliminary proposals to change the student transfer policy among district schools.

One would restrict the current policy, allowing students to transfer to another school only at the request of school officials "when it is in the best interest of the student."

Under the liberal proposal, transfer permits would be considered only to schools at which enrollment is less than 95% capacity on Jan. 31.

One provision stipulates that secondary students who transfer would be ineligible to participate in varsity competitive athletics or other activities involving interscholastic competition.

The reason for that, Prasch said, is "to prevent the collusion of getting all the good players in one place."

'Fits Our Needs'

Board member John Lux said he believes a more open transfer policy "fits our needs." Elaborating on that, Pearl Goldenstein said, "I think you should have some choice" to take different programs offered among the schools.

The district needs to look at how a closed transfer policy will affect future busing methods, said Board member Marvin Stewart. He said a liberal policy "would make us move out to outlying schools more quickly" where buildings and programs are newer.

Under the liberal policy, the district would assume no responsibility for transporting students on transfer.

The school transfer policy will be referred to the Principals' Council for recommendations for later board action.

2 Gilbert Killers Said 'Possibility'

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau
Hastings — Webster County Atty. Jerry McDole said here Tuesday night there is a "distinct possibility" that two persons may have been involved in the slaying of Marcia Gilbert, 17.

He made the statement following a 2½ hour meeting with Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas and Hastings attorney William Connolly. The latter had been the personal attorney for Jeff, Vogler, who was found dead of a self-inflicted gunshot last week shortly before the discovery of Miss Gilbert's body.

Vogler's banker father, Robert Vogler of Guide Rock, was also seen leaving the meeting at Connolly's office, although McDole

Former Tavern Building Burns

Des Moines (UPI) — Damage was estimated at $15,000 Tuesday from a fire at a building that formerly housed Mother Blue's Tavern here.

Firemen said the blaze, which broke out early Tuesday, apparently was caused by faulty electrical wiring. Firemen battled the blaze for about one hour.

would not confirm his attendance.

The question of whether the death of young Vogler, 19, was accidental or suicidal is yet to be resolved and remains a principal factor in the case. McDole said it now appears that a ruling on this could be "perhaps a week away."

Asked if there were any firm suspects, the attorney replied that "there are a number of people we want to talk to." He declined to elaborate.

"I will say that the investigation is going to intensify," he continued. He explained that the funerals of the two young victims, both from Guide Rock, had "slowed down the case."

Two State Patrol investigators and Webster County Sheriff Ed Wiggins have done most of the questioning into Miss Gilbert's death. Lancaster County authorities have also been involved in the investigation of the Vogler shooting.

McDole said there was no specific purpose for the meeting beyond "putting our heads together and working toward a solution."

Governor Takes Action At Airport

... Special Session Denied

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The 1974 special session of the Legislature died Tuesday as abruptly as it was born.

Less than a day after Unicameral Speaker Richard Proud called the special session to raise the 9% usury lid, Gov. J. James Exon returned from a trip to South Dakota and signed a proclamation rescinding Proud's action.

Exon signed the proclamation at the Lincoln airport late Tuesday night before a crowd of reporters shortly after he landed.

Earlier Tuesday, Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer told Exon that Proud lacks the power as acting governor to call a special session.

Just To Be Safe

But just to be safe, Exon signed a proclamation rescinding the special session after learning about Proud's actions while attending an Old West Regional Commission meeting in Rapid City, S.D. Meyer said Exon could do this just to eliminate any doubts.

Tuesday morning, Proud issued a call for a special session beginning Oct. 7 to consider raising the state usury ceiling in order to ease the tight money situation and stimulate home building.

Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, second in the line of succession, was in Racine, Wis., thus making Proud acting governor. The State Constitution gives the governor the power to call a special session in times of emergency.

However, Meyer, after some quick legal research at Exon's request, determined that in this particular instance the acting governor does not have the power to call a special session.

He added that he was not saying that under no circumstances could an acting governor call a special session.

Gone Only One Day

Exon, he said, is not disabled and was going to be gone for only one day.

Secondly, he said there does not appear to be an "emergency" which justifies a special session.

"My personal opinion is that the situation (regarding the usury rate) won't change much before the governor arrives," he said. Exon, he said, could call a special session to deal with the usury rate if he wanted.

Meyer cited two precedents for his opinion. The first dated back to 1872 when the president of the Nebraska Senate issued a call for a special session in the absence of the governor.

The Nebraska Supreme Court ruled the call for the special session was not valid since "no extraordinary occasion" existed.

In more recent times, former Atty. Gen. Clarence Beck said in 1951 that the lieutenant governor could not veto a bill while the governor was gone for three days.

Governor Irked

Proud's actions Tuesday apparently irked Exon, who referred to either Proud or the special session idea as "irresponsible" no less than eight times during a brief phone call from Rapid City.

Prior to learning of Meyer's opinion, Exon said, "If a special session becomes necessary because of the irresponsible actions of Sen. Proud, it will cost Nebraska taxpayers $15,000 to satisfy his flair."

"He better make sure he has 30 votes (the number needed to override a gubernatorial veto) ... I'll veto any action the Legislature takes to raise interest rates during a special session," he said.

Exon said the usury ceiling should be considered during a regularly scheduled legislative session. This last Legislature failed to pass a bill to lift the usury lid.

"No change may be necessary," he said. "There is now talk of lower interest rates."

Some were apparently aware of Proud's plans, although it caught Vince Brown, clerk of the Legislature, and other legislative employees completely by surprise.

Marsh's office had a prepared statement ready for newsmen. The statement said simply that Marsh was prepared to preside over any special session.

Proud also said he informed Sen. Richard Marvel, the Republican gubernatorial nominee, of his plans.

Stanley Raps Culver

Des Moines (UPI) — Republican Senate candidate David Stanley charged that his democratic opponent — Rep. John Culver — has the worst absenteeism record of any Iowa congressman and is setting new marks for "not being on the job."

Cost Of Groceries Rises $25

WASHINGTON (AP) — The retail cost of a year's supply of farm-produced groceries jumped $25 in August to a record annual rate of $1,751 for a typical household, figures released by the Agriculture Department showed Tuesday.

Higher prices for beef, pork and eggs accounted for much of the increase. Lower prices were reported for milk, lettuce and bread.

Officials said the dollar increase, amounting to 1.4 per cent from July to August, was the largest since the indicator rose $52 or 3.1 per cent on an annual basis from last January to February.

The August basket cost eclipsed the previous record of $1,747 set last March. The figure had declined in April, rose in May and then dropped in June and July.

According to the USDA statistics, compiled at the request of newsmen, nearly all of the $25 gain from July was due to a larger share for farmers. But compared over a one-year period the figures showed middlemen have contributed most to rising consumer food costs.

The market basket, which includes 65 retail items, theoretically provides enough food to supply a household of 3.2 persons for an entire year. Officials say the monthly costs by no means correspond fully to actual family food spending.

Imported food items and seafood, for example, are not included in the statistics. Only domestically farm-produced food is used to determine the costs.

The basket rate of $1,751 included a farm share of $729 in August, up $22 or 3.1 per cent from July. The middleman share was $1,022 last month, up three-tenths of one per cent or $3 from July.

Officials said the retail cost of the August basket was up 5.9 per cent from its annual rate of $1,653 a year earlier. But back then, one expert said, it had jumped 8.1 per cent from July as federal price controls were unwinding.

Since August of last year, according to USDA, the retail cost has gone up $96 on an annual basis. But that includes a drop of $134 in the share farmers get and a boost of $232 in the share or margin going to middlemen who process and sell food at wholesale and retail.

Put another way, the latest figures showed the farm share of the basket dropped 15 per cent since August 1973, while the middleman portion increased 28.3 per cent.

Freeze Threatens To Raise Prices

By United Press International

A premature, crop-killing freeze, striking in the aftermath of a stunting summer drought, damaged corn, soybean and vegetable crops across a broad belt of the Midwest this week and threatened to boost prices of food at the grocery counter.

The cold, hitting on the last day of summer and first day of autumn, nipped behind-schedule crops from the Dakotas to Ohio. Agricultural leaders, agronomists and farmers said the result would be a slash in farm income in the nation's breadbasket.

Several experts said it was too early to assess the extent of the damage, and many were reluctant to predict the freeze's impact on food prices. But Dr. W. O. Scott, University of Illinois agronomist, said: "I would suspect it would drive up meat prices."

William J. Kuhfuss, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said it was too early to say what would happen to meat prices "though it's for sure they won't be any cheaper."

Kuhfuss said that across northern Illinois, Wisconsin, northern Iowa and Minnesota, corn that would have gone into the general market now will have to be sold for feed and "it won't be very good feed either."

Walter W. Goeppinger, chairman of the National Corn Growers Association at Boone, Iowa, said the killing frost means a $700 million loss to farmers, figuring corn at $3.50 per bushel.

Crop expectations will be down 20 million bushels from what the Agriculture Department last predicted, he said.

"The frost means both net and gross farm income loss," Goeppinger said. "It means less buying power for farmers in the agribusiness field as well as personal expenditures."

Paul Matavon, a farmer and seed processor at DeKalb, Ill., saw no immediate effect on beef prices "but a year from now, high quality beef might be really scarce and expensive."

David Stroud, president of the National Livestock Board, said the psychological effects or more bad news could drive up prices as much as the bad weather. He said the one-two-three effects of heavy spring rains, summer drought and an early frost has "traumatized the psyche of the marketplace."

Israel Vows No Surprise

By United Press International

Israel said its warplanes attacked Arab guerrilla concentrations in Lebanon Tuesday on the nation's official commemoration of the first anniversary of the Yom Kippur war and vowed never again to be caught by a surprise Arab attack.

A military spokesman said the air strike could be considered to be "pre-emptive" to prevent a guerrilla attack on Yom Kippur Thursday. A similar Israeli strike was launched two days before the Rosh Hashanah holiday last week.

The nation marked the day with its forces concluding three days of large-scale maneuvers near the Syrian frontier, holding memorials for its 2,600 war dead and receiving campaign ribbons at army, air force and naval bases throughout the country.

In Egypt, authorities closed Cairo International Airport for 45 minutes Tuesday while the air force practiced for a military display scheduled for Oct. 6, to mark the first anniversary of the latest war with Israel.

Officials said the airport would be closed for similar periods Wednesday and Thursday for the same purpose.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres closed the armored, infantry, paratroop and air force war games on the occupied Golan Heights of Syria by telling the troops it would be a mistake for Syria to resume hostilities.

2 Persons Arrested In Kidnaping Of Girl

Cincinnati, Ohio (AP) — Two men were arrested Tuesday night in the kidnaping of 4-year-old Allison Mechem, who was returned to her parents unharmed earlier in the day, police said.

Cincinnati police said the two were arrested in a chili parlor in nearby Colerain Township, after a white van traced to the man was spotted parked in front of the restaurant.

Colerain township is adjacent to Cincinnati and about 15 miles from the fashionable suburb of Mount Lookout, where the blonde, blue-eyed Allison was kidnaped Monday.

The child was reunited with her parents after being discovered in a motel room about five miles from her home. Police said her father, Charles S. Mechem Jr., followed ransom instructions but the money was never picked up.

Mechem said his daughter had been held in the motel room during virtually her entire captivity.

Oil Exporters Deny Responsibility For World Inflation

VIENNA (AP) — Oil exporters angrily rejected on Tuesday charges that they are responsible for worldwide inflation and claimed their countries have been exploited for years by the oil consuming nations.

"Inflation did not begin with the increase in oil prices. It is rather because of inflation that oil prices have had to be adjusted," declared an authoritative official of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries — OPEC.

President Ford told the World Energy Conference in Detroit on Monday that exorbitant or rigged oil prices could "threaten the breakdown of world order and safety."

The OPEC official, whose telephoned statement was released with the understanding that his name would be withheld, declared that "the so-called high prices of crude oil have been arrived at only because we tried to detain wind-fall profits made by international oil companies — mostly American companies — and records show that however high the crude oil prices are, they account at present for no more than 1 or 2 per cent of worldwide inflation."

The official also claimed the oil producers "are threatened by energy starvation" if they continue high production "only to satisfy the wasteful uses of petroleum in industrialized countries."

A spokesman for the Arab League in Cairo said speeches by Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger sharply criticizing the high level of crude oil prices had shocked the Arabs.

In Caracas, a government source said Venezuela is studying the possibility of increasing U.S. and other foreign oil companies' income tax payments by between 10 and 15 per cent on each barrel.

A member of Venezuela's ruling Democratic Action party claimed that "every day the president of the United States shows that he is badly informed and advised" on oil matters.

Celestino Armas added that "this situation could seriously affect the traditional and cordial relations between developed and industrialized countries."

Venezuela is the world's fifth largest oil producer and third ranking exporter.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the Arab press accused the United States of waging a war of nerves against Arab oil producers in an effort to force price cutbacks.

"The United States wants to appear to the world as the good guy fighting the Arab oil producers who are the villains," wrote Michel Abou Jawdeh in the independent newspaper Al Nahar.

At the ministerial conference in Vienna earlier this month, OPEC kept oil prices frozen but

Remarks On Peace Stressed

Washington (AP) — President Ford's spokesman emphasized Ford's remarks about peaceful cooperation in responding Tuesday to a newsman who reported some Arabs argued that the President's latest words on oil pricing amounted to "war talk."

Both Ford and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger delivered major address Monday in which they emphasized the "disastrous consequences" that could flow from artificially high oil prices.

Press secretary Ron Nessen said in response to a question about Arab reaction that the talks "speak for themselves" and were "candid and very practical speeches that addressed the realities of the world."

Nessen went on to note that Ford had said there was no rational alternative to international cooperation in this nuclear age.

increased royalties and taxes paid by the companies to the governments in producing countries by 3.5 per cent.

The OPEC official's statement was not a formal communique, but it clearly reflected the policy of his organization.

He said, "We know that our oil has been wasted for a long time ... and added that "if people in the United States and other industrialized countries would like to share our standard of living, we might find a common solution for dealing with the oil situation."

OPEC members include countries in the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries — OAPEC — but also the non-Arab states of Indonesia, Iran, Venezuela, Ecuador, Nigeria and Gabon.

At United Nations headquarters in New York, British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan echoed Ford's remarks by expressing hope that prices of oil and other commodities "will not remain at their present peak."

"The objective is clear and straightforward," Callaghan declared in the General Assembly debate. "We need to marry the revenue of the oil producing countries with the technology of the developed countries."

Arab foreign ministers and other chairmen of Arab delegations to the United Nations said they would meet

Wednesday to coordinate their positions on subjects before the assembly. But they denied the meeting was being called to formulate a response to the U.S. demands for lower oil prices.

"Oil could come up," one Arab diplomat said, but it would be only one of several matters to be discussed.

At the European Common Market headquarters in Brussels, Britain and the Netherlands urged their partners in the nine-nation trading bloc to pay special aid to Third World nations hit by high oil prices. But there was stiff West German resistance.

Bonn spokesmen said there would be no joint Common Market action until other rich nations also put up cash. West Germany has insisted that Common Market participation should be conditional on contributions by the oil producers and the United States.

So far the United States has made no commitment and there has been only a trickle from the oil producers.

British Development Minister Judith Hart urged the Common Market development ministers to grant up to $250 million in aid to Indian subcontinent nations confronted with serious balance of payments difficulties caused by oil price hikes.

In Beirut, Lebanon, the British earl of Limerick, a leading international banker, told a conference the problem of recycling surplus oil funds involves both the consuming and producing countries.

The earl warned that "if the automatic response by the producing countries to rising costs of imports is to raise the price of crude by some related percentage, then we shall have a form of institutionalized leapfrog which is literally adding fuel to inflationary flames."

N.Y. Times Summary

World Grain Outlook Worsens

Washington — The outlook for world grain production, with governments already worried over increasing hunger, has grown worse in the last month, the Agriculture Department reported Tuesday.

The department's latest projections show that wheat prospects for the crop year that began July 1 are down 8.9 million tons below last month's forecast, and coarse grains, mainly livestock feed, are down 3.5 million tons.

Frenchman Detects Apprehension

United Nations — French Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues said U.N. delegates and world governments seemed "apprehensive about the implicit threats" contained in the latest American statements about the energy situation. He strongly warned against a confrontation between the oil-producing and oil-consuming countries.

Ford Takes Aim At Criminals

Washington — President Ford heralded a new government campaign at all levels to take professional criminals "out of circulation." He told the International Association of Chiefs of Police that the fight against violent crime was high on his agenda and that he has asked the Justice Department to work with state and local agencies to set up a program to "target and keep track of professional criminals."

Inflation Has No Quick Cure

Washington — Preparing for Friday's "summit meeting" on inflation, government officials say 12 preliminary conferences and hundreds of hours of debate had confirmed their previous assessment: there are no quick cures for the country's economic ills.

Some Optimism In Air

Vienna — The East-West negotiations on reduction of forces in Central Europe reopened here Tuesday in an atmosphere of some optimism brought about by the end of Washington's preoccupation with Watergate.

Keep-The-Tapes Move OKd

Washington — The Senate Government Operations Committee approved unanimously Tuesday three pieces of legislation meant to maintain government custody of Richard M. Nixon's tapes and papers despite President Ford's promise to turn them over to his predecessor. At the same time, two other congressional panels moved to inquire into Nixon's pardon and to endorse a subcommittee's action that cut in half the money requested for his transition to private life.

Nixon Given Blood Thinners

Long Beach, Calif. — Physicians at Memorial Hospital have begun giving former President Nixon blood-thinning injections to prevent the formation of new blood clots in the damaged veins of his leg and to help heal the existing clots.

Argentine Seeks Asylum

Buenos Aires — Rodolfo Puigros, a leading leftwing Peronist and recent rector of the University of Buenos Aires, has become the first Argentine to seek diplomatic asylum since the Peronists took power.

Rocky Says Nixon Admitted Guilt In Accepting Pardon

Washington (UPI) — Vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller said Tuesday that former President Richard M. Nixon's acceptance of a pardon for any Watergate crimes was the same as an admission of guilt.

But while standing by President Ford's decision to pardon Nixon, Rockefeller disagreed slightly with the President's acceptance of an agreement to turn over the Watergate tapes to Nixon.

The former New York governor conceded under intense questioning from Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., that the tapes agreement "circumvents" efforts to get the whole story about Nixon's role in Watergate before the public.

"Then we can agree that the tapes agreement circumvents the public's right to know all the facts about Watergate," Byrd said.

"That's right," Rockefeller said.

Yet while Rockefeller agreed on that point, he was reluctant to criticize Ford for making the decision to turn over the tapes to the former president.

Rockefeller, undergoing a second day of questioning on his nomination before the Senate Rules Committee, also said that his vast wealth and big business connections could potentially influence his actions in the nation's second highest office but that would "violate the law."

Rockefeller was asked again by Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., whether he agreed with Ford's pardon of Nixon.

The 66-year-old former New York governor said the pardon showed "compassion," that no one wanted to see Nixon "in jail," and that Ford's action in the long run would "heal the wounds of the country."

"But shouldn't people be held accountable for their unlawful acts?" Cannon asked.

"I think we have to separate people from the president," Rockefeller said.

Byrd strongly questioned whether Rockefeller could divorce himself from the financial world and act independently of outside pressures.

"Can you separate the interests of big business from the national interest when they conflict?" Byrd asked.

"Yes, sir, no problem," Rockefeller replied.

Byrd said Rockefeller had not dispelled what he had called "the myth" that he and his famly exerted financial power and control over sectors of the economy.

ROCKEFELLER . . . faces Senate Rules Committee for the second day.

"Can we at least agree that the tremendous, colossal influence is there?" Byrd asked.

Rockefeller said he could agree "if you add the world potential. If abused, there could be potential influence if we violated the law."

"I was brought up to be honest and therefore I don't anticipate any conflict," Rockefeller said.

On other subjects Rockefeller rejected the idea that the nation's oil companies had acted to withhold oil supplies to drive up prices. He said the nation would have been faced with a "disaster" during the energy crisis if it had not been for the efforts of U.S. oil firms to find and produce oil around the world.

He said oil companies needed the oil depletion allowance, or some other tax mechanism, in order to produce enough capital to develop more production to meet rising demand.

Rockefeller reviewed the events that led up to his decision on the Attica Prison riot in September 1971 in which 43 inmates and hostages died.

He said he agreed with his corrections commissioner, Russell G. Oswald, that the prisoners demands for amnesty and flight to another country left no alternative but to storm the prison.

But if he had to do it over again, he would move in and break up the uprising "without weapons . . . in the beginning," he said.

Rockefeller acknowledged that he had talked to President Nixon and written to other high administration officials in behalf of the Grumman Aircraft Corp. of Long Island, N.Y. The matter concerned Grumman's attempt to renegotiate the F14 fighter plane contract and Rockefeller said "I felt I was doing my duty to my constituents."

Warden Wolff Moves On

Virginia has profitted at Nebraska's expense with the appointment of Charles Wolff Jr. as the former state's deputy director of corrections. After 18 years of working in the Nebraska correctional system, the last three as warden of the penal complex, Wolff is taking an excellent opportunity for professional advancement, an endeavor which earns him the best wishes of people here.

Wolff should also be recognized for his progressive administration of the Nebraska penal complex. He took a personal hand in improving programs at the various facilities, including expanded furloughs, better medical treatment, vocational training and educational and work release for inmates. Wolff furthermore communicated in a forthright manner the needs of staff and inmates to the legislative and executive branches. His earnest expression of program and facility needs may indeed have hindered his career in this state.

The fact that Nebraska has thus far balked at implementing the comprehensive penal reform plan now before it is not in any way a reflection on Wolff's performance as warden of the penal complex.

That Warden Wolff was passed over when Gov. Exon sought a replacement for Nebraska Corrections Director Victor Walker has never set well with a number of people interested in this state's penal system who regret that the governor chose to ignore talent already familiar with the Nebraska system.

The Star shares that attitude, and we don't mean that as a slight to new Corrections Director Joseph Vitek, who came here from New Hampshire, but simply as a recognition that Wolff was a logical choice on the basis of his record and ability.

With Wolff's regrettable but understandable departure, Exon and Vitek are faced with making what should be a most sensitive appointment. Hopefully they will search for a progressive and at the same time realistic warden in the Wolff mold.

SEN. KENNEDY ... spoke of family considerations ...

Kennedy Frees The Democrats

NEW YORK — Edward Kennedy has done the wise and courageous thing in closing the door, about as conclusively as it was possible to do, on the possibility that he might run for president in 1976. Skeptics will question whether the family reasons he stated were really controlling with him; but the net effect of his announcement nevertheless comes down to two points of over-riding importance.

One is that other Democrats who may aspire to the 1976 nomination — Senators Henry Jackson, Walter Mondale and Lloyd Bentsen; Governors Ruben Askew, Dan Walker and John Gilligan; potential governors Hugh Carey and Edmund Brown Jr. — can now move out of Kennedy's shadow and compete among themselves rather than against his dominance of their party.

The other and more important consequence of Kennedy's "Sherman" statement is that, whomever the Democrats nominate, he or she will be able to campaign against the record of the Nixon-Ford administration without the distracting necessity to defend against the inevitable charges Kennedy would have faced as a result of the Chappaquiddick incident of 1969.

In one stroke — and in refreshing contrast to Richard Nixon's desperate efforts to cling to power and office — Kennedy made it possible for his party to nominate a relatively new face who will be free to carry the battle to Gerald Ford — the presumed Republican nominee — and to focus the campaign on the records of the incumbent President and his predecessor.

Kennedy chose to point to family considerations — which are real and com-pellent — and to dismiss the importance of Chappaquiddick in his decision. Nevertheless, he made that decision last summer, in the weeks not only of Richard Nixon's unraveling cover-up but also following the appearance of an article by Robert Sherrill in The New York Times Magazine which raised the many unanswered questions about Chappaquiddick in the most devastating fashion.

After deciding to take himself out of the race — as persons close to Kennedy tell the story — he decided to defer an announcement of that decision until after the 1974 elections, on grounds that he would be more effective campaigning for other Democrats this fall if he appeared to be a potential president.

On recent political trips, however, Kennedy was taken aback to find that important and traditional Kennedy backers were supporting other candidates — for instance, in California, Walter Shorenstein was backing Henry Jackson. In that state, too, the Democratic nominee for governor, Edmund Brown Jr., declined to have Kennedy campaign for him. In Indiana, Kennedy encountered some insistent Chappaquiddick picketers.

These unpleasant developments apparently caused Kennedy to reverse himself; he came to think that he might be a more effective Democratic campaigner if he was NOT viewed as a prospective president. And although he may have been candid in saying, in his announcement, that he still believed he could win the presidency, he nevertheless may also have recognized what a bitter and difficult campaign his presence in the race would have insured.

A meeting on Cape Cod last weekend with some of his closest advisers failed to shake Kennedy's decision to take himself out of the race. Nor was it unknown to him that, following the Sherrill article, the Boston Globe, The Los Angeles Times and The Philadelphia Inquirer were conducting major investigations of the Chappaquiddick affair — and these could only be forerunners of other inquiries to come.

Kennedy may therefore have been disingenuous in casting entirely in family terms his decision not to seek the presidency. Certainly, he overstated the case considerably when he asserted that he had answered all questions about Chappaquiddick and had nothing really to fear on that issue, had he decided to run. The hard truth is, as can be attested by almost any reporter who travels the country, that there is a huge reservoir of doubt and resentment about what Kennedy called "the tragedy" at Chappaquiddick particularly among those who had given their allegiance to Spiro Agnew or Richard Nixon or both, and those who had seen both Agnew and Nixon brought low for "cover-ups" rather like those of which they suspected Edward Kennedy.

Kennedy did nothing to clear up such doubts; if anything, his decision not to run probably confirms many Americans in their suspicions about his behavior at Chappaquiddick. His announcement did clear up one of the major questions about 1976 politics, and so far in advance as to transform the outlook for the campaign. Now the question is not whether the voters will accept Edward Kennedy, but whether the Democrats can find a candidate to unite their party and make the case against the Nixon administration and its hand-picked successor.

Inefficiency Charge Rebutted

Earlier this month, a legislative fiscal staff report charged the State Roads Department maintenance program with a 50% inefficiency factor resulting in $6.4 million in wasted funds. The staff told the Legislature's Appropriations Committee — chaired by GOP gubernatorial candidate Richard Marvel — that among other things, road maintenance crews start work late, lack a systematic work plan, are overstaffed and some workers even sleep on the job.

Not surprisingly, the State Roads Department attacks the validity of the survey and rejects the conclusions. "A detailed investigation conducted by this office, involving all levels of management and our front-line maintenance employees, indicated to me that these charges are highly irresponsible, are without substantial foundation and simply are not supported by the facts in most instances," State Engineer Tom Doyle said in a response to the Appropriations Committee.

A district engineer added his nickel's worth to the department response in simpler terms: "I am sure that an accurate and properly conducted study will prove that we are more than 41% efficient," he said.

More than 41% but less than 100%, we're certain.

The value in the fiscal staff's report is that roads department administrators are now looking for possible inefficiencies. Doyle has called for a meeting of district engineers, the state highway commission and members of the legislative staff to discuss the charges. Whatever the outcome of such a meeting, we imagine that maintenance supervisors will be on their toes in the future.

The Legislature, however, might want to guard against the possibility that similar monitoring of executive branch activities might be used to disguise what really are political fishing expeditions. If such surveys are not legitimate, the Legislature's integrity is compromised and it opens itself up to charges of wasting time and money.

On Looking Out Rear Windows

WASHINGTON — Looking down and across the street from my Eighth-Floor window at the New York Times Washington Bureau the other day, I could see a platoon of blue-helmeted police in flak jackets, carrying rifles, preparing to rush down a ramp into a garage.

Recalling a mistake made a generation ago, I hurried to the newsroom to make certain the desk knew of the story breaking across the street. The newsmen were ahead of me; reporter Linda Charlton was already on the scene, and filed an account of the death of D. C. Police Officer Gail Cobb, the first policewoman in the United States killed in the line of duty.

The intrusion of a real news event into the lives of some of us who pontificate about trends and underlying forces can come as a jolt. Nor is that disturbance of routine unique to the news business: everyone has had the experience of dutifully doing one's duty and thereby missing what may be more important.

In 1950, I was a reporter for Tex and Jinx McCrary's interview column in the New York Herald Tribune. In a cubicle in the back of my boss's office-apartment on East 63rd Street, I was doggedly clicking away despite the commotion that was going on downstairs in the lobby of the whitestone house.

One of the beautiful McCrary secretaries (they were all beautiful; that's why some of us would work for $40 a week) poked her head in the doorway, pointed out the window, and breathlessly began to tell me something. I cut her short.

"Look, Jeanne," I growled in an adolescent Hecht-MacArthur voice, "I'm on a deadline. The only way you get ahead in journalism is to make your deadline no matter what the distraction."

Saying that felt good. It stopped feeling good when I walked downstairs an hour later, the headline of my innocuous interview feature happily met, to discover a crowd of reporters and police milling in the lobby.

The reporter, who was there from the Herald Tribune informed me that thieves had held up the high-fashion jewelry store on the ground floor, in what was easily the biggest jewel robbery of the year. He then asked me what I was doing there.

When I mumbled that my office was two flights up, and that I had paid no attention to the noise because I was working against a deadline, the reporter said: "You mean this was the Trib's first chance to beat the Daily News to a police story, and you blew it?"

He may have exaggerated for emphasis, but it was true enough to hurt. After the crowd had left, I sat on the front stoop of the whitestone and brooded about the kind of fate that would penalize a man for trying to be conscientious.

A lady in a wide-brimmed black hat, one of the jeweler's regular customers, came down the steps, saw me looking desolate and stopped to ask if I were all right. I said thanks, Lady, just leave me alone, it wasn't something I wanted to talk about. She tried to communicate again, I gave her the freeze, and she went on.

One of the jewelry store managers came out, pointed to her vanishing form, and said he didn't care if they were robbed as long as they kept customers like that. Like who? "Greta Garbo," he Immediately after having missed the news story, I had told the Number One target for every interviewer — the mysterious, I-vant-to-be-alone Garbo — that I wanted to be alone.

A re-evaluation of my attitude for reporting news seemed in order. As an interviewer, I had often asked the people I spoke with, "What was the low point of your life?" (Abe Burrows gave the best answer: "I hate to say, Kid, but I think this is it.") Missing the big jewel heist and then rejecting the elusive Garbo was the low point for me.

The lesson of that low point sank in: Concentration is fine, and conscientiousness worthy of a pat on the back, but the pretention that causes us to live our lives with blinders on is punishable by extreme embarrassment.

Looking out the window, especially un-dreamily, is not a waste of time. The world outside our heads, and the world outside our cubicles, ought to be affected more by the world across the street: A contempt for the contemporary only sours our examination of all that awaits us.

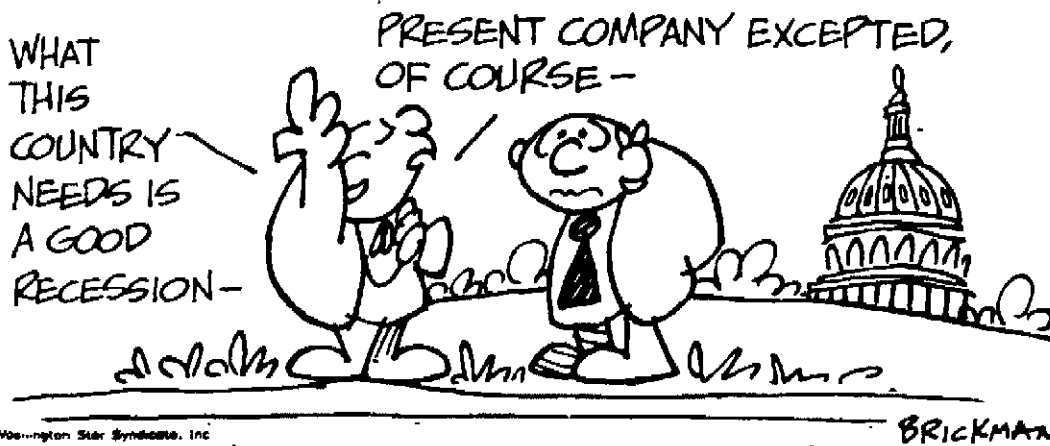

Right now, I look out at a parking lot where, just a couple of cars away from my car, a suspected killer was apprehended. I see a park-and-lock sign over a ramp on which a brave young woman, doing her job, was shot to death.

The evidence has been photographed and washed away, the story reported and forgotten, the three-year-old child of the dead policewoman passed on to relatives. But the inclination to look out the window will not soon again be resisted, and the view from the Eighth Floor will never be the same.

Lower Farm Prices

Back in my school days there was a fable in our reading book about the mice having a meeting on how to protect themselves. The opinion arrived at was that they should put a bell on the cat so they could hear where it was. But when any of them was asked to put the bell on the cat, each said, "Not me!"

I was reminded of that story by the recent meeting called by President Ford in Chicago, attended by representatives of labor, the chain stores, packers, food processors, etc. to discuss how to get food prices lowered. But when it was suggested that any of them take less, the answer was, "Oh, no, not me!"

However, they were more fortunate than the mice. Since there was no one there to speak up for the farmers, the opinion arrived at was that farm prices had to be lowered.

It's a strange thing. Back in the 1950's when farm prices were shot down by the government, Secretary of Agriculture Benson said it was for the purpose of letting people have more money to spend for other things.

But now, when we have a severe inflation, which the experts say is caused by people's having too much to buy the "other things" instead of letting farm prices go up, the government still is interested in lowering them.

Actually, higher farm prices would probably be an effective way to slow the inflation. Several years ago, I read that when the Eisenhower administration reneged on the President's pledge to agriculture about supporting farm prices at 90% of parity, a group of economists called on Mr. Eisenhower and told him that that was the wrong thing to do. That for an expanding economy, we need to create more new wealth, and our only source of new wealth was from the sale of raw materials, and agriculture accounted for 75% of that. But the President's Keynesian advisors said credit would do the same thing. The economists replied that pouring credit into the economy was just like pouring water into soup. You got more, but it was weaker — in other words, inflation. The Keynesians said they could control inflation.

In my opinion, the inflation is credit-fueled. Anyone should be able to understand that when you borrow money, it has to be returned, usually with interest. As more and more money is being borrowed, the interest charge keeps rising. So more and more of the income, both public and private, is going for interest payments.

HERMAN DIERKING

Marijuana Effects Compared

We feel that "H.L.P." (Star, Sept. 19) correctly pegged the No. One drug problem as alcohol. If unregulated marijuana would double the social costs listed, we would not urge it. Alcohol is physically addictive. Marijuana is not. Marijuana is organic and does not destroy brain cells or liver tissues. Alcohol does.

We don't know that all 30,000 highway fatalities are actually caused by alcohol, but its use does impair reflexes and narrows peripheral vision, two things critical to driving ability. Marijuana does not affect either.

Every commission studying the issue has concluded that no reliable evidence exists indicating marijuana causes aggressive or anti-social behavior. Studies also indicate that heroin addicts more frequently have a history of alcohol abuse than marijuana use.

We react to the news that a convicted murderer is telling children marijuana caused his behavior the same way you might feel if he tried to blame his supper or a divine revelation.

It also seems likely that if a prisoner could get out from behind the bars and stone walls by saying one too many glasses of milk had caused him to commit his crime, he would not hesitate to do so.

We will try to locate and read the book "H.L.P." recommended. We return the favor by suggesting the Consumers Union Report on "Licit and Illicit Drugs" and "The Honest Politicians' Guide to Crime Control" by Morris and Hawkins which, among other things, relates the horrors of our present penal system, the penalty now threatening marijuana users.

JANE HIGGINS
Citizens for Same Drug Laws

'The Lancaster Star'

In a recent editorial, The Star expressed the desirability of a merger of city and county government (Sept. 13). It was stated there was a selling job to do, that there are entrenched interests to pacify, misgiving citizens to win over. The final sentence in the editorial states: "We hope local leadership is not paralyzed when the time comes."

The Star had a chance to help on Sept. 19 to create a climate of cooperation between city and county. On Page One were pictured nine young persons and a story about 11 youth in Lincoln who are merit semi-finalists. On Page 27, the name of a young woman from Waverly, Barbara Hegarty, was buried in fine print. Waverly is in Lancaster County. Whenever stories of sports, etc. are printed, Lancaster County is included with the rest of the state with much less emphasis.

If The Star is as desirous of merger as it claims, then it can foster trust by design. It could tailor its stories to include rural Lancaster as an integral part of a whole. Merger should be a natural progression. Rather than an arbitrary decision by a few, it should result from pressure from a majority of representative citizens. It will be continually difficult to assuage the fears of rural citizens if they are constantly reminded by newspapers and institutions that they are not a part of the mainstream. That their inclusion is an exception rather than the rule.

Is The Star willing to accept a portion of responsibility for leadership or will it continue to be an onlooker pointing out the shortcomings of county personnel?

I'm not suggesting that The Star change its heading to "Lancaster Star" but it would give a strong impetus to merger which would indicate its firm support.

LaRUE WUNDERLICH

Sees Little Hope Ahead

The credibility of people in high position in and out of government is under increasing attack. Almost everyone hoped that President Ford might start a reversal of the trend. It is becoming increasingly obvious that Mr. Ford, like so many others before, is tarred with the same brush.

Now comes our own Senator Hruska, champion of vested interests throughout his legislative career, self-proclaimed advocate of strict interpretation of the Constitution and "due process," to support Mr. Ford in his ill-advised pardon of Mr. Nixon. More stone-walling, more proof that there is nothing left like "equal justice." This and a self-devouring inflation present little hope for renaissance.

DEWEY NEMETZ

Marijuana Controversy

I am replying to "H.L.P." concerning the marijuana laws. I argue that it is THIS person's false propaganda that does not make sense and is partly responsible for labeling over half of our young people "criminal" because of their personal choice. I find the letter full of faulty logic, false assumptions and purely emotional appeal.

First, H. L. P. assumes that the effects of marijuana are the same as alcohol, and they aren't. He falsely concludes that two times as many drugs would produce twice as much trouble. Since the number of dope-smokers will be smaller, it is ridiculous to think that twice as many people will be involved. What's more, pot is not addictive and does not cause physical dependence that does so much harm, as in the case of alcohol.

Another point of faulty reasoning: Just because a person committed a crime while on a drug doesn't mean that (1) the drug made him do it, (2) he wouldn't have done it otherwise, or (3) that the drug will make other people do it.

The next thing I would like to ask H. L. P. is, if he believes everything a penal inmate tells school children, especially considering he has something to gain by saying what he does. Anyone who believes this is very gullible.

Lincoln, Neb.

The last error of reason is that H. L. P. believes that because people smoked pot first, it was responsible for (1) having ruined lives, and (2) moving on to harder drugs. The President's Commission on Marijuana concluded that these assumptions were not generally true and that most people actually started out on tobacco, alcohol and mother's milk and these things are no different than pot in a cause-effect relationship.

I suggest the reading of "The Marijuana Papers" for an un-emotional, unbiased view of the subject.

Hogs At The Public Trough

I am a taxpayer — a nobody — so The Star probably will not publish my letter.

I am amazed that our elected congressmen, senators and representatives, and governors never cease to ask for more pay. Like hogs at the trough, they never get their fill.

They increase Social Security for hush money. Is that justice?

MARY PARTINGTON

Computer-Age Possibility

The C.I.A. must be restricted and contained! Its shadowy self intruded on the people in November, 1963, the Vietnamese affair. June, 1968 and now Chile.

All that follows is hypothesis. Suppose someone has gained control of the nation's secret "spy" army. Knowing the ability of a cell in the C.I.A. to develop a "psychiatric" profile on a person without his knowing it, this super-chief orders one on the former President.

It shows his probable reaction in a given state of facts. The public already knew he was a loner and reclusive. Some of his better work was done in these periods of reflection.

So the "super-chief" arranges for Watgate just as he had for the Bay of Pigs some 10 years before. Then he introduces a double-agent who tips off the metropolitan police department. Knowing the former President's penchant for secrecy and acting alone, the rest would take place automatically for the super-chief, "Mr. 1984." Then he would know that two men could be introduced into the government who would never be elected by the people.

Far-fetched? Not at all in this computer age. People should feel sorry for the former President as it is plausible both he and his predecessor, hounded from office, were bravely facing up to a secret cabal in high places.

The C.I.A. should be fully examined!

Your World Tomorrow

Cakes, Bread May Cost Less Dough

EDITOR'S NOTE: One way of cutting costs and saving the consumer money is in increasing productivity. The same is true for agricultural products as Homer Starr, senior editor of Chemical Week, a McGraw-Hill publication, explains.

By HOMER STARR
New York — Those high prices for bread, breakfast cereals and cake flour could level off and even come down, if hybrid wheat lives up to its advance notices.

The consumer won't notice the difference in next week's shopping basket, though, since the multi-million dollar programs of some of the nation's largest grain companies probably won't show commercial results for five to 10 years. For instance, out at Fort Collins, Colo., agronomist Byrd C. Curtis is in charge of a 30-acre wheat nursery where different varieties of wheat from many countries are used as the "parents" of new hybrid strains that are tested for high yield, resistance to plant disease, and performance in flour milling and bread baking.

Hybrid Seed Projects
This wheat research station was established in 1967 by Cargill, Inc. (Minneapolis, Minn.), an international grain marketing company. Cargill says it's committed to a long-term project for developing and producing hybrid seed that will significantly increase the quantity of wheat grown on each acre "and make U.S. producers more efficient and more competitive in world grain markets."

Agronomist James A. Wilson is heading a similar program on a test farm near Wichita, Kans., for DeKalb Agresearch, Inc. (DeKalb, Ill.). Wilson points out that it's necessary to develop plants that will be suitable for different parts of the country with diverse climates. For the winter wheat crop that farmers from Texas through Nebraska have been planting during the past few weeks, DeKalb supplied six new varieties of hybrid seeds for on-the-farm testing. The company began this program in 1961.

And on a farm research facility near Hutchinson, Kans., Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. (Des Moines, Inc.) since 1966 has been sponsoring a hybrid wheat-breeding effort directed by agronomist Charles F. Hayward. So far, Hayward says his group has worked with nearly 20,000 wheat varieties from around the world. The company this year made eight types of hybrid seed available for test plots of up to 50 acres and recently announced that it plans to offer 40,000 bushels of hard red winter wheat seed for the September 1975 planting in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas. That would be enough for about 40,000 acres, which may sound like a lot of land but actually is less than a thousandth part of the total U.S. wheat crop.

Why are these big companies putting so much effort and money into development of wheat hybrids, which are particularly difficult to produce and up to now have not been credited with any notable increase in yield?

Success In Corn
Undoubtedly, they are motivated mainly by the huge success attained two generations ago with hybrid corn. Look what happened when American corn farmers started using hybrid seed.

In 1939, when less than one-tenth of one per cent of the U.S. acreage was planted with hybrid seed, corn farmers harvested an average of only about 24 bushels per acre. Last year, with nearly all commercial corn growers firmly attached to the use of hybrids, the average yield was 102 bushels per acre.

During that same period there has also been a rise in the country's average wheat yield, but the gain was on a much smaller scale — from about 14 bushels per acre in 1930 to last year's all-time high of 34.7 bushels per acre.

Now, according to some wheat geneticists, hybrid wheat looks like the best bet for the next further substantial increase in U.S. wheat output. With good hybrid seed and adequate moisture, says DeKalb's Wilson, it should be possible to get individual plot yields of as much as 100 bushels per acre. In such a setting, he believes, the average yield could climb to about 50 bushels per acre.

At that rate of production, wheat and wheat products should be plentiful and reasonably priced. In the meantime, though, your daily bread may cost you a lot of dough.

State Got More Than $11.4 Million

By United Press International
The State Game Commission said Tuesday that Nebraska has received more than $11.4 million in federal funds during the first 10 years of the 25-year Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965.

Willard Barbee, commission director, said during the 10-year period 334 state and local projects have been approved in Nebraska involving more than $1 million in federal allocations per year.

Since federal dollars must be matched with 50% state or local money, Barbee said this means that parks and recreation improvements totalling twice the $11 million federal figures have been accomplished.

This year's federal allocation, Barbee said, will be just over $2 million.

"The Land and Water Conservation Fund has been a real boon to outdoor recreation in Nebraska," Barbee said.

He said the commission has or is currently working with 60% of the municipalities across the state with additional projects being funded for counties, school districts and natural resource districts.

He said funds from the federal act have enabled improvements at Indian Cave State Park, the Salt Valley reservoir recreation areas; a 10,000 acre addition to Fort Robinson State Park and facilities at Mormon Island and Windmill state wayside areas on I-80.

"Overall," Barbee said, "funds from this program have assisted with improvements ranging from rodeo bucking chutes to the acquisition and development of large metropolitan parks."

Three Win $500

Three University of Nebraska-Lincoln students have been awarded $500 Black and Veatch scholarships. They are: Harold J. Friedman Jr. of Ogallala, James Plouzek of Lincoln, and Delton Rowe of Syracuse.

Head Favors HEW Budget Cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, refused on Tuesday to endorse the anti-inflation recommendations made by 186 delegates to a White House economic summit conference last week.

Sending 72 pages of reports and recommendations for consideration at the full summit conference this week, Weinberger told President Ford that the delegates' conclusions

"obviously do not represent the views of the department." "Nor," he continued, "do we understand that they necessarily represent the views of any of the members of Congress who attended the conference."

The delegates, representing scores of major national organizations ranging from the American Medical Association to the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, were virtually unanimous in opposing cuts in the federal social welfare budget.

Although divided on many other points, the delegates agreed that inflation would increase the need for more rather than less federal spending in health, education and welfare programs.

For example, the health groups could reach consensus only on one point: "reduction of the federal budget for health and other human service programs is an inappropriate action to take in the fight against inflation."

Delegates to the poverty section of the conference, representing the poor and the elderly, likewise reached a unanimous conclusion that "Our income support and social service systems must be strengthened and extended to protect those least able to protect themselves from further hurt both from the inflation itself and from the policy steps that may be taken to fight that inflation."

Donald Rumsfeld

Rumsfeld To Replace Haig

Washington (UPI) — President Ford Tuesday appointed Donald Rumsfeld as his top White House aide, replacing Gen. Alexander Haig, the last of the holdovers from the Nixon administration.

Rumsfeld, 42, the U.S. ambassador to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, will take over the cabinet-rank job as chief of staff after Ford selects a successor for the NATO post. This is expected "very soon," White House press secretary Ron Nessen said.

Haig will take command of U.S. forces in Europe Nov. 1 and become supreme commander of NATO forces Dec. 15. His continuation as Ford's top adviser, following his close association with Nixon during the pre-signation period, had drawn stiff criticism from many quarters.

"It's a Ford White House now," said Nessen, "and it's not a Nixon White House."

He said Haig will be leaving the White House before the end of this week, and on his arrival Rumsfeld will have responsibility for "Administration and coordination — functions that Gen. Haig was performed for the President."

At the same time, Nessen indicated that Rumsfeld would not wield as much power and presidential protection as Haig and predecessor H. R. Haldeman did under Nixon, saying:

"The President wants to have access to a lot of people and does have access. He gets advice from a lot of people. But there does need to be a coordinator to determine the best use of the President's time."

Rumsfeld, who served four terms as congressman from Illinois' 13th district, has been U.S. Ambassador to NATO since February 1973. He previously served in the Nixon administration as director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, as a White House counselor and as director of the Cost of Living Council during Phase II of the wage-price controls.

While in Congress, Rumsfeld helped lead a revolt against the "Old Guard" in which Ford wrested the House Republican leadership from Charles W. Halleck of Illinois.

He is a graduate of Princeton University, and served in the Navy as a pilot and flight instructor.

Rumsfeld headed the transition team after Ford took over the presidency Aug. 9. He expressed reluctance to give up the Brussels post, but was persuaded by Ford to return to the White House.

Senate Bill Requires Volunteers For Areas Short Of Health Care

Washington (UPI) — The Senate Tuesday overwhelmingly approved legislation requiring medical and dental schools to designate 25% of their students for future service in medically underserved areas.

In voting a three-year, $2 billion health manpower bill, the Senate repudiated attempts by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., to work towards a doctor draft and federal licensing standards for doctors and dentists.

The key vote came on a 70-18 approval of a substitute measure sponsored by Sen. J. Glenn Beall Jr., R-Md., to extend legislation that expired

June 30. The House has yet to act on manpower legislation.

The bill, approved 81 to 7 on final passage, would provide federal aid to medical and dental schools which agree to allocate 25% of their classroom spaces for students volunteering to serve in big city slums or rural areas short of medical care workers.

In return for their later civilian or federal service, the students would be entitled to government scholarships. The bill requires one year of service for each year of scholarship aid.

Bill Advanced To Protect Citizens From Computers

Washington (UPI) — The House Government Operations Committee unanimously approved Tuesday a bill to give private citizens protection against the government's computer information banks.

By a 32-0 vote, the committee sent to the floor a bill which would allow a person under certain conditions to find out what information about his personal affairs is stored in the computers.

The citizen would be able to get copies of the information, correct it where erroneous, and sue the government if the information is misused or abused.

Sponsors of the measure said it would protect citizens against damage to their job chances or credit an insurance ratings.

House OKs Cut In Aid To Turkey

Washington (UPI) — The House Tuesday voted overwhelmingly to cut off military aid to Turkey while it keeps heavy military forces in Cyprus, but refused to approve a similar ban on arms for Greece.

The ban was included as an amendment to an otherwise routine bill — approved 374 to 26 — to continue funding of government agencies which have not yet received their 1975 appropriations.

The House also refused 291 to 108 to bar the Central Intelligence Agency from using its funds to foment overthrow of foreign governments.

Warnings Sounded
The move to cut Turkey off the military aid rolls was approved 307 to 90 despite warnings from Democratic and Republican leaders that it would endanger Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to get a settlement between Greece and Turkey.

The provision reads that military aid to Turkey would end until "the President certifies to Congress that substantial progress toward settlement has been made regarding military forces in Cyprus."

The House rejected, 48 to 11, a proposal by Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, to include a ban on military aid to Greece.

Albert, Rhodes Join
Speaker Carl Albert joined with House Republican leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., in urging defeat of the amendment by Reps. Benjamin Rosenthal, D-N.Y., and Pierre "Pete" Du Pont, R-Del.

"I have the deepest affection and sympathy for the Greek people but I hope we don't do anything here today that will alienate Turkey, because that would be more explosive and more difficult than the situation presently is," said Albert.

Rhodes warned that if Turkey drops out of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the U.S. 6th Fleet would have to be shifted from the Mediterranean to fill the gap.

Rep. George Mahon, D-Tex., said Kissinger told him prior to debate on the bill Tuesday that the amendment would be "destructive and ill-advised" to U.S. efforts to get a settlement.

Rosenthal said Turkey was clearly in violation of U.S. aid laws which ban use of military aid for aggressive purposes. "The fact is that Cyprus was a neutral sovereign country and Turkey invaded that country. It's a simple violation of our law."

Senate OKs $82.5 Billion In Defense Money

Washington (UPI) — The Senate, assured that cuts made in the Pentagon budget would not imperil the nation's security, approved and sent to the White House Tuesday a $82.5 billion defense appropriations bill.

The compromise bill, worked out by Senate and House conferees, was approved by voice vote. The House approved the bill Monday.

The bill's total reflected a $4.4 million cut in the amount requested by the administration for fiscal 1975. Most of the cuts were in weapons procurement and research.

Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said the defense package "struck a fair balance" between the needs of the military and the necessity to cut spending.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — A phone call this a.m. from my Numbah One daughter. She calls collect: "Phoenix is calling. Will you accept the charge?"

The fall weather in Phoenix is cooling off. It is only 100 degrees.

In that healthy land of Arizona, a Mrs. Martin reached the age of 100 years with a pretty fair question.

She said: "I can't understand why they don't let a man make their own whiskey."

Last year, 75,000 American husbands went down to the corner for a short beer and didn't come back.

I notice a husband going on the Arthur Duffy always goes out for a very simple thing. "He said he was going out for some cigarettes." "He went down to the delicatessen for some salami."

That's the way it reads on the report to the Bureau of Missing Persons.

Such husbands have been put through the computer. The composite man is 44 to 51. Occupation: salesman or semi-executive. Education: 2 1/2 years of college. He is amiable and aggressive. (How can you be both?)

We expect the winter's rains any day now. For engineering reasons unknown to a simple individual like me, this scatter was built so that rain does not run off the property. It runs through the ceiling.

Sweet mystery of life. Call the plumber to come and plumb.

already rainy. In the Eternal City, a girl named Concetta climbed out on the seventh floor ledge of the apartment house.

People called the police and fire department. They shouted encouraging thoughts. "Don't jump! Life is not that bad!" And, "Concetta, Concetta, come down and eat da spaghetti."

Firemen pulled her off by force and took her to the psychiatric ward.

Nobody would listen to Concetta.

The psychiatrist did though. He turned her loose.

He said "She had accidentally locked herself in the room and was trying to get to the next window and out."

The moppets are off to school in the cool morning fog. Eyes alight.

The more education a man has, the more he hits that squareface gin, son.

High school educated people are 70% drinkers.

The college graduates are even higher.

It's an argument for the dropout. Keep your children ignorant and sober.

Rate Setting Revisions Suggested For Hospital

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

After discussing what two proposed ordinances don't do, the Lancaster County Health Planning (LCHPC) Council decided Tuesday on a third approach to Lincoln General Hospital rate setting.

Prompting the discussion was a task force report prepared by five LCHPC members, which was submitted to and adopted by the group Tuesday.

The report was prepared at the request of the Lincoln City Council.

In a May 29 letter Helen Boosalis, chairperson of the City Council, asked LCHPC to provide comments and/or recommendations on two proposed ordinances currently before the council.

The first ordinance, if approved, would place the authority for setting Lincoln General's rates completely in the hands of the hospital's Board of Trustees.

The second ordinance would grant that authority to the City Council.

Present System

At present, changes in Lincoln General's rates, developed and proposed by the hospital board, are submitted to the City Council. If the council takes no action within the prescribed 30-day period, the proposed rates automatically take effect.

One of the primary drawbacks of the present system, according to Larry Doerr, who presented the report at the behest of task chairman Earl Wittoff, is that "things lapse into being instead of being acted upon" by the council.

In presenting the report, Doerr said the first proposed ordinance — which would give total authority to the hospital board — ignored the factor of public accountability; and, the second contradicts the statutory delegation of administrative authority to the Lincoln General board.

Recommendation

In light of this, the task force recommended that the present practice of rate submission by the hospital board to the City Council be continued.

However, amendments to alter current procedures were included in the task force proposal:

1) The hospital would be "required to submit to an 'external' rate review process." (At present, Lincoln General voluntarily undergoes rate review by the Nebraska Hospital Reimbursement Plan's Rate Review Committee — a group selected by the Nebraska Hospital Association.)

2) A report of the Rate Review Committee's findings would be submitted to the City Council, which would then have 30 days to act on the proposed rate schedule.

3) The City Council would hold a public hearing on the proposed rates.

4) Following the public hearing, the City Council would be required to act, either pro or con, on the proposed rates.

Doerr said that because the review committee is "set up by the hospitals themselves," the task force questioned the "true independence of the exterior review."

Primary objections to the task force report voiced by Lincoln General officials present at the meeting had to do with the time factor that would be involved in the proposed rate-setting procedure.

Sudden Changes

"The things that cause rate changes are often very volatile and very sudden," such as increases in food prices, Lincoln General board chairman Walter Nolte said.

And James LeRossignol, the board's vice chairman, said that the need to make quick decisions in such cases would be hindered by the process of rate review and consideration indicated in the task force proposal.

Elaborating on the Lincoln General board's support of the proposed ordinance that would place rate-setting authority in the board's hands, Lincoln General Hospital administrator Robert Brungard said that, although "we have the greatest respect for the City Council," the members of the hospital board have a better "knowledge of and daily exposure to" the problems of Lincoln General.

He further pointed out that the board is accountable to the public.

"The board is appointed by the City Council," he said. And, because two members of the council sit on the hospital board, there is "continuous liaison" between the two bodies.

And, "we do have public meetings," Brungard said.

Students Getting Done With Program Early

One out of five students in the Lincoln Public Schools Orton-Gillingham Reading Disability Program last year "no longer need it," even though three of four students shouldn't have graduated to normal reading skills until September, 1975.

Carl D. (Nick) Novak made that report Tuesday night to the Lincoln Board of Education, noting that nine of 10 students in the program "made satisfactory progress."

Prior to June, 1973, the program had been used mostly in Title I schools for disadvantaged children, but — at the recommendation of educators and Lincoln residents — the board expanded it in 1973-74 to all schools in the district.

The program focused on children with "normal reading ability but whose performance is inadequate," Novak reported in an evaluation of the program during 1973-74.

Novak concluded that the program was successful in that it was available in all schools "and was properly implemented in most."

He said, however, successful identification of students with reading disabilities "depends upon dedication and quality of the staff rather than thoroughness of the specified identification procedures."

The district-wide effort involved 100 teachers and cost about $222,000, or $117 per pupil.

LTV Wins Contract
Sterling Heights, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Division of LTV Aerospace Corp. has been awarded a $19.6 million contract by the U.S. Army for production of Lance missiles, the company announced.

School Building Fund Said Tight

Supt. John Prash said Tuesday evening current building fund projections through Aug. 31, 1976 total $7,902,289, while projected expenditures total $9,964,870.

"Depending on the timing of the plans, we will have a problem with cash flow," Prash said, but explained that the projects will be extended over a period of time.

By controlling the timing of new building, additions and remodeling of schools, the district can control the cash flow, "which we've been doing," Prash told the Lincoln Board of Education.

With current plans, he said, "We'd have about a $400,000 balance as of October 1976." However, he told the board, the district will have to tighten its building belt because of increasing construction costs.

Keep Careful Watch

Current commitments, including Zeman, Southwood and Northeast, "give us no problem," the superintendent said. But he warned that any acceleration of future projects "will have to be watched rather carefully."

For example, he said, the $1.2 million remodeling of Lincoln High School will cost more than early estimates, and will have to be done over a lengthier period of time than originally planned.

Prash said the building fund balance as of Aug. 31 this year was $3,082,289. Expenditures for Goodrich, Zeman, Lake View, Northeast, Southwood and site purchases totalled $3,724,870.

Prash put annual receipts at Aug. 31, 1975, at $2.35 million with projections of $2.54 million for work on Lincoln High, Morley, Irving, other renovation, site improvements and purchases.

For a year later, in 1976, Prash estimated building fund receipts at $2.47 million, and $3.7 million in expenses for West Lincoln, Southeast, an eastside junior high, renovations, site improvements and purchases.

Summary of Objectives
Prash distributed to board members a building planning summary of eventual objectives for school buildings.

Highlights of that summary include selling the Bethany building and adjacent site; selling Bryan School to the Southeast Community College or using it for the Lincoln Learning Center, and reassessing Hartley for special education programs.

The plan indicates the district will eventually abandon for school use Havelock, Hawthorne and Whittier. Saratoga will be considered for abandonment; Everett abandonment for junior high use; and East, use for senior high only.

When Hayward is no longer needed for special programs, the plan indicates the building and adjacent site should be sold. The old Riley School will also be sold.

Plans for other schools in the district include expansion, remodeling, establishing new boundaries for student attendance and adjusting uses, including absorption of students from schools identified for closing.

No Air Conditioning
Prash recommended that the district not air condition Morley School, part of the plans for an addition: "Our cash position is precarious enough at this time to justify" delaying the air conditioning, which would cost $137,530, he said.

Eventually, Prash said, all the schools should be air conditioned, but the work should be done all at once later. He acknowledged that delay will cost the district more money.

Rudy Bauer, operation and maintenance supervisor, put cost estimates at 20-25% higher, excluding inflationary factors.

The main justification for air conditioning schools now, Prash said, is for summer use. Board member Williamette Shafer said officials should also consider it for the future, when district "might possibly go to year-round school."

The board reviewed with Prash 17 sites the district owns for potential school use, totalling 347.88 acres. Prash recommended selling about six of the sites, totalling about 65 acres.

In other business, the board agreed to work with county welfare officials to establish an Early Childhood Education Planning program, applying for $13,500 in Title IV-A funds of the Social Security Welfare Act.

The program would be aimed primarily at, but not limited to, native American families. Teachers would visit homes to develop pre-school, home-based learning.

Board member John Lux said if the grant is denied, the district ought to establish such a plan on its own. He said spending $13,500 now could save the district considerable sums later for remedial learning work.

4 Amendments To Charter Thought Worth Promoting

Special attention should be given, to promoting four City Charter amendments on the Nov. 5 ballot, members of the City Charter Revision Commission said Tuesday.

They suggested meeting with Finance Director Jim Mallon on a possible public relations program as well as to explore possible contribution sources for promotion which cannot be paid for out of public funds.

Members noted that previous programs have been very successful in receiving contributions to pay for promotion and advertising.

The charter amendments would 1) repeal a requirement that the mayor receive a higher salary than city department heads, 2) remove an 8% interest rate ceiling on city bonds, 3) remove an interest rate ceiling on unpaid special assessments of the city, and 4) remove a 7% interest rate ceiling on revenue bonds.

Chairman Karl Dickinson announced that he had been informed by member Ray Frohn that he should be removed as a member of the commission since he now resides in Seward County.

City Atty. Dick Wood said he felt that this constituted a resignation and the mayor should be informed so that a replacement could be appointed.

In other business, the commission received from City-County Health Director Dr. Ed Lyman a request for a charter revision which would, in effect, make the City-County Health Board autonomous.

Wood said that the only change he could see in the proposal would be that the health board action would no longer be subject to City Council and County Board approval and that the director would be appointed by that board instead of the mayor subject to council and County Board sanction.

He indicated that such a change would probably require state legislation as well as city charter changes since the County Board, which is governed by state law, would be involved.

Since the time has passed to add any amendments to the Nov. 5 ballot, commission members deferred until a later time further discussion of the matter.

Criminal Charge Decision Awaits Audit Completion

Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas said Tuesday the decision on filing criminal charges regarding missing funds in the county treasurer's office will not be made until the audit is completed.

Auditors were working again this week — they worked only one day last week — on the $5,400 shortage in the motor vehicle division of that office.

Neither Douglas nor County

Treasurer Frank Golden had been given an estimate of how long the audit back to 1970 may take, they said.

Douglas said Darrell Blank, head of the motor vehicle department, is no longer working in that office, but there is not at this time any implication or any accusation against Blank concerning the missing funds.

Golden said there has been no termination or suspension discussion with Blank in connection with the funds shortage, but he has not reported to work since the shortage was discovered, and his pay was terminated Sept. 13.

Owners Of 2 Motor Lodges File Bankruptcy

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — The owners of the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodges in Las Vegas and Sparks, Nev., have filed bankruptcy petitions in federal court.

The petitions were by R. Paul Osterie, secretary-treasurer of the Osterie Nevada Corp., which operates the two lodges. He said his business was unable to pay some $13 million in debts.

The Las Vegas hotel, completed in June, 1973, cost about $8 million. It was called the largest lodge in the Johnson chain west of the Mississippi. The Sparks hotel cost $5.1 million

A Lincoln woman died of carbon monoxide poisoning Tuesday, according to police Capt. Lowell Sellmeyer.

Sellmeyer said Phyllis Harrington, 54, of 1235 S. 48th, was found in a car in the garage with the engine running.

Her body was found by her husband when he returned home from work.

Mrs. Harrington is survived by her husband Frank; son, Steven, Lincoln; sister, Mrs. Walter Harvey Jr., Gering; brother, Russell Stauffer, Alturas, Calif.

Trade Panel Okayed

Waverly Firm Is Burglarized

Articles valued at more than $400 were taken in a burglary at the Waverly Hardware and Lumber Co., according to sheriff's reports.

Articles taken included sunglasses, pocket knives, 36 boxes of shotgun shells, wrench sockets and a saw. According to sheriff's reports, the burglar or burglars apparently unhooked a sliding door by some unknown means to enter the building.

Bellevue Voters OK Bond Issue

Bellevue (AP) — Voters approved a $15 million school bond issue Tuesday by a vote of 1,264 in favor to 1,006 against.

The bonds will help finance a $23 million 10-year school construction program.

The school district includes most of Bellevue and areas east, south and west of the city.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

"Why do I have so much difficulty with men?" That's the lament I often hear from Aries women. Basically, the Aries woman seeks a man she can respect, can respond to, relate to — she does want to make her man happy. However, only too often this woman finds a man who, for his part, turns out to be seeking a mother. Why this should be so where Aries women are concerned, I do not know. Perhaps it is because the classical woman of this zodiacal sign is domineering, talks when she should be listening, is dynamic, demanding and original. The man who is seeking a "security blanket" would naturally be drawn to this kind of aggressive woman. What do you think?

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Go slow where legal matters enter picture. What appears to be a fine proposition could contain loopholes. Heed opinion of expert. Check with Cancer, Capricorn persons. Shake off tendency to brood. Apparent setback is only temporary.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Laugh at your own foibles. Study Aries message. Be versatile without scattering forces. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Means ask questions, deal with vital people who know what's happening in the world today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Individual who seems to impose on you could turn out to be valuable ally. Don't rush to judgment. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio could be involved. Emphasis is on involvement, complications and spirited disagreements.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Lie low. Wait and observe. Defer to wishes of partner, mate. Some persons close to you may not see things your way. It is best to make concessions. If you give a little, you could receive much. Gemini, Virgo could be involved.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Home, family, general domestic situation is spotlighted. Some relatives act in eccentric manner. There are surprises, quick changes. Diet continues to be more important than you might care to admit. Be mature enough to take care of yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You find your way. You peer through clouds of obscurity and glimpse flash of truth. Married or single, you find that love is closer than you dared hope. Excess feelings. You have great opportunity now to be happy. Don't throw it away!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your sense of what is needed, what is creative comes surging to forefront. You get in and pitch and your style comes through and you prove you are the opposite of proverbial flash-in-the-pan. Involvement becomes serious — don't play games where emotions are concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You deal now with situation which could turn into losing proposition — if you so permit. Key now is to finish, to tack in loose ends, to finalize arrangements. Aries, Libra could be in picture. Surprise development occurs behind the scenes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New approach to friendships, hopes, desires is indicated. Accent is on income, possessions, valuables and special collections. Leo, Aquarius persons figure prominently. You are presented with token of esteem by member of opposite sex.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You get your way and get paid for it. Foot efforts are consolidated. You improve relations with older family member. Money picture is brighter. Accent is on new starts, opportunities, added recognition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Highlight versatility, humor, curiosity. Answers are obtainable if you correctly ask questions. Shift through data — broaden horizons. Rise above the petty — laugh at your own foibles. You are in position to influence people who can help you with spiritual cause.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain valid hint from Aquarius message. You will be dealing with travelers, philosophers, writers. Many of your desires can be fulfilled. You will be rid of red tape — and of situation which has tied you in emotional knots.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are spiritual, special, temperamental, artistic. You made new start this year and the June-July period was especially significant. Pisces, Virgo persons play key roles in your life. You have clear sailing now for creativity, for self-expression and happiness based on being able to be yourself, not a robot or one subjected to the whims of others.

Clubs Compete For Dollar

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

Charities have their walk, bike- and telethons.
PTAs have their carnivals.
And women's service organizations have their style shows, their bazaars, their card parties . . . The list is endless.
And the moneymakers are in fierce competition for the shrinking dollar.
For the women's groups, the fashion extravaganzas and the bazaars seem to be the most lucrative.
But there are stings attached — very securely.

The market is well saturated — one organization, the Mrs. Jaycees, has already succumbed to the intense competition and has discontinued its traditional style show.

And you've gotta have a gimmick. The Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary has combined its fashion show with an auction and has considerably increased its take.

Bazaars rarely go by that name. They come in many shapes and sizes; under many disguises. Take, for example, the Holly Festival, Country Fair, Pilgrimage and Market Place. All are bazaars in the ordinary sense of the word.

How much the organizations make often is determined by the magnitude of the endeavor.

Lincoln General Hospital Auxiliary's annual fashion show has grown by leaps and bounds over the past dozen years. Last year, the combination style revue-auction netted $16,000, all of which was turned over to the hospital for equipment purchases, according to Ginny Hand, president.

And this year the group has added another twist to the affair — original choreographed interludes to the fashion experience.

The group actually has "two equally productive money-raising" projects currently underway, Mrs. Hand noted. In addition to the style show, the auxiliary has assembled a cookbook, "Recipes in General," that now is in its second edition. Added to that will be the forthcoming sale of a recipe finder.

The Holly Festival, is THE moneymaker for the St. Elizabeth Hospital Auxiliary. It now brings in between $7,000 and $8,000 annually, said Mrs. Wes Tomhave, president.

The festival originally was a bazaar featuring hand-made Christmas items donated by members, but "like, anything, people got more ideas and it just grew," Mrs. Tomhave said.

Recent additions include raffle, style show, consignment sale of articles, art show — you name it, it has it.

HAUNTED HOUSE . . . makes money for the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild.

But with the increasing size of the project has come increasing demands on members. "It takes untold hours and dedication," Mrs. Tomhave sighed.

Another source of revenue is the auxiliary's annual card party and style show which brings in an average of $700.

The Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild's moneymakers are new, relatively speaking.

The most lucrative, far and away, is the Haunted House, partly "because the preparation is not as involved," said Mrs. G. T. Watson, president. She declined to place a dollar figure on the receipts, however, because she feared attracting competition.

The Haunted House and Beaux Arts Ball ventures were both begun in the 1969-70 club year. The ball, held each February, is not as elaborate as it was in its early years, Mrs. Watson admitted. Last year, the social experiment had all the trappings of a tropical luau.

Other guild endeavors are a rummage sale, which brings in between $1,500 and $2,000 and a spring fashion show. A card party, to be launched this spring, is the guild's newest venture.

Through the years, the guild has raised $13,000 which has been applied to the playhouse's building fund and mortgage.

"We started making money when we got rolling on the Haunted House and others," Mrs. Watson said. "It's a lot of work, a lot of man hours."

The University of Nebraska Faculty Women's Club tries "not to do the same thing twice," said Mrs. Wesley Meierhenry.

This year's installment will be A Country Fair, a mixture of arts and crafts, foods and other bazaar items.

In years past, similar ventures, such as a garage sale and bazaar, have brought in as much as $900.

A cook book, "Nebraska — The Good Wife" provided a break from the ordinary last year and netted the club more than $2,000, the biggest moneymaker to date. It now is in its second printing, Mrs. Meierhenry said.

The Lincoln Symphony Guild's Head-dress Ball has been a major part of the city's social season since 1960.

The 1973 installment made more than $6,000, all of which was turned over to the symphony orchestra, according to Mrs. Willard Cook, publicity chairperson.

Other guild endeavors include a fashion show and bridge marathon. The fashion show, initiated in 1962, brought in nearly $1,000 last year — but it used to be more profitable, before other groups jumped on the style show bandwagon, Mrs. Cook pointed out.

The Heritage League is concentrating all its efforts on the Holiday of Trees, held for the first time last Christmas.

COUTURE FUR SHOWING

DESIGNS BY ADOLFO AND BILL BLASS

Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 26-27-28

Don't miss this "first" at Hovland-Swanson! Fabulous furs from the showroom of Revillon by two great designers — Adolfo and Bill Blass. Adolfo, so well known for his knits and beautiful evening dresses, believes in "Fur Individuality", in a way of dressing so a woman can bring her own flavor to her fur wardrobe. Adolfo works with mink, sable and fox and likes young looking boutique furs and includes hamster, otter, Persian paws and raccoon for his blazers, jackets, coats and capes. Adolfo's collection offers an air of the soft, casual, feminine and elegant!

"Luxury Daytime Dressing" is the important statement Bill Blass makes in his '74 collection for Revillon. His furs reflect ease, movement and an elegant flavor, all encompassing the mood of the "Blass Woman" with refined and defined taste. His fur shapes go along superbly with the snappy "Blassport" look as well as his highly acclaimed couture clothes. It all spells luxury dressing!

Mr. Don Bernstein, Revillon representative, will be here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, to present this collection of outstanding furs, as well as our own selection by Pierre Cardin. Don't miss this opportunity to see the Fall and Winter Furs from Revillon. Fur Salon, Second Floor, Downtown Only.

Bulk Beef Isn't Always Cheaper

That 89 cents a pound for a side of beef also includes rolled brisket, boiling beef, soup bones, warns a specialist.

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

So you think that beef prices are too high and you are going to beat future price increases by buying a side of beef.

Well, don't be so sure — especially if you are accustomed to buying cuts of meat over the counter. You may get stuck paying a higher price per pound than you would by making purchases at a grocery store.

"The average housewife has good experience buying meat in stores," said Dr. Roger W. Mandigo, Extension meat specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, "but she has very little experience in buying bulk meat."

According to Dr. Mandigo, prices quoted by the dealers of bulk beef outlets may sound like a steal — 89 cents per pound — but that is "for the entire carcass hanging on the rail."

Consumers have to take into consideration the loss of fat and bone when the carcass is butchered, Dr. Mandigo pointed out.

"Also, the housewife may find herself with a number of cuts, such as rolled brisket, boiling beef and soup bones, she does not normally use," he added. "You'd be surprised how many people say, 'Oh, I just feed those to my dog.'"

Instead of buying bulk beef, Dr. Mandigo urges consumers to take advantage of meat bargains currently found in the supermarkets.

"Advertised specials found on weekends in the supermarket provide an excellent opportunity to stock up on beef, pork and lamb for the freezer," he said, adding that meat prices will undoubtedly rise during the coming months.

"Sides of beef or sides of pork are costly investments at a time when everybody's dollars are being stretched further and further," he said.

"However, if the consumer would take advantage of beef blade roasts, pork loins, leg of lamb or other specially advertised cuts of meat that are found in the supermarkets, the savings would be greater and initial investment not as large," the meat specialist explained.

"If consumers are interested in purchasing a side of beef," Mandigo continued, "they should be aware of several points to insure that they are really getting a good value for their investment."

Among the facts outlined by Dr. Mandigo are:

- Sides of beef should be USDA choice if the meat's eating quality is expected to be about the same as meat purchased at the supermarket.

- Sides of beef that are advertised at very large savings are sometimes much lower in quality than those normally sold in the supermarkets. ("While the amount of lean meat purchased per dollar is quite high in some of these lower grading sides of beef, the eating quality is often substantially lowered," he said. "The lower eating quality means less flavor, juiciness and tenderness.")

- Know the yield grade, or the amount of lean meat, in the side of beef you plan to buy. (Yield grades are "one" — the leanest and considered the best — through "five" — which has the most waste. Most beef purchased in the supermarkets is about yield grade "three.")

- Be aware of cutting losses and know how the meat should be aged (meat is aged properly before it is placed in supermarket counters) and how much fat and bone should be left in the meat.

Councilwomen To Speak

Sue Bailey and Helen Boosalis, Lincoln City councilwomen, will be guests at the second Women/Speak '74 program. "Women In Politics" will be held at 11:45 a.m. Wednesday at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln union.

Real Estate Saleswomen Have Advantage

Many women have a distinct advantage over men in residential real estate, says Angeline A. Kopka, president of the women's council of the National Association of Realtors.

"How many men know if a kitchen has an efficient layout, accessibility to appliances and adequate cabinet space? How many men can tell whether the laundry area is in a convenient location, whether there is enough closet space and whether the traffic pattern is favorable? Because many women have an inherent knowledge of the real estate product — the home — they start out with a greater insight into home buyers' and sellers' needs than most men do," says Ms. Kopka.

"In fact," she adds, "if a man and a woman without previous experience enter the real estate field, the woman will generally have an advantage at the outset of her career because of her greater knowledge of the home.

"Furthermore, women are definitely not discriminated against in the real estate profession. They have always had free entry into the field and have always received equal pay for equal work. As evidence of the fact: Women in residential real estate sales outnumber men in the field by a wide margin."

It takes Nestlé's real Chocolate Morsels to make real Toll House Cookies (and here's a 10¢ SAVINGS on your next batch).

Genuine Toll House Cookies taste so special 'cause they're made with natural ingredients, like farm-fresh eggs and creamy butter. So, they just naturally need Nestlé's® real Semi-Sweet Chocolate Morsels, too, not imitation chocolate-flavored chips.

We'd like you to enjoy the real thing. Here's the original recipe, and a 10c savings on the Morsels you need for your next batch.

ORIGINAL TOLL HOUSE® COOKIES

Preheat oven to 375° F. Sift together 1 cup plus 2 Tablesp. sifted flour, ½ teaspt. baking soda, ½ teaspt. salt, set aside. Combine ½ cup softened butter or shortening, 6 Tablesp. granulated sugar, 6 Tablesp. brown sugar, packed, ½ teaspt. vanilla, ½ teaspt. water; beat till creamy. Beat in 1 egg. Add flour mixture; mix well. Stir in one 6-oz. pkg. (1 cup) NESTLÉ'S® SEMI-SWEET CHOCOLATE MORSELS, ½ cup coarsely-chopped nuts. Drop by well-rounded half teaspoons onto greased cookie sheets. Bake at 375° F. TIME: 10 to 12 min. Makes 50 2" cookies.

Calculating Your Beef Savings

By GRACIA McANDREW
Star Staff Writer

To ensure a savings, many factors should be considered by consumers before purchasing sides of beef.

Among them are the needs and size of the family, available cash to make the purchase without financing, home facilities to store the packaged meat and the probability of using less desirable cuts of meat such as brisket, soup bones and stew meat.

Also, according to Dr. Roger W. Mandigo, Extension meat specialist at the University of Nebraska, the consumer's knowledge should include being able to recognize a reasonable weight loss after the processing procedure.

Above all, don't be afraid of asking questions when purchasing bulk meat and take time to shop around and make a few comparisons.

In contacting three local bulk beef outlets, a Star staff member estimated the actual price per pound of usable meat at each establishment and compared it to the regular and sale prices of beef at a locally owned supermarket.

It was found that the lowest retail price for bulk beef ($1.10) was 18 cents less per pound than a local supermarket's average sale price ($1.28), when no additional financing and locker fees were included.

Outlet No. 1 offered a yield "two", choice carcass of 260 pounds at 89 cents per pound, which totaled $231.40 plus tax. After processing, which could result in as much as 25% or a 65 pound loss, the estimated cost per pound would amount to $1.19 for 195 pounds of actual take-home weight.

A yield "three," 380 pound side of choice beef was offered by Outlet No. 2 at 77 cents per pound or $292.60 total plus tax. Considering a 30% or 114 pound loss during processing, bringing the actual weight to 266 pounds, the price per pound for packaged meat would be $1.10 per pound.

A 257 pound side at yield "two" was for sale at Outlet No. 3. Weight lost during processing was estimated at 25% or 64 pounds. Therefore, the purchaser would actually be buying 193 pounds of meat at $1.21 per pound.

The chart below is based on a yield "two" or "three" 300 pound uncut side of beef, which will lose from 40 to 50 pounds during processing.

Prices are based on a local supermarket's regular meat prices and sale prices, which usually are 10 cents off of the regular price per pound.

Weight	Cut Of Meat	Regular Price	Total	Sale Price	Total
36 lb.	Chuck roast	$ .98	$35.28	$ .88	$31.68
20 lb.	Round bone	1.29	25.80	1.19	23.80
15 lb.	Prime rib	1.98	29.70	1.88	28.20
60 lb.	Hamburger	.89	53.40	.79	47.40
51 lb.	Round steak	1.59	81.09	1.49	75.99
7 lb.	Stew meat	1.59	11.13	1.49	10.43
8 lb.	Soup meat	.79	6.32	.69	5.52
6 lb.	Sirloin tip	1.98	11.88	1.88	11.28
10 lb.	Rump roast	1.42	14.20	1.32	13.20
20 lb.	Sirloin steak	1.98	39.60	1.88	37.60
12 lb.	T-bone steak	2.39	28.68	2.29	27.48
245 lb.			$337.08*		$312.56

* Average price per pound at regular supermarket prices is $1.36
** Average price per pound at sale supermarket prices at $1.28

Pricing meat from an approximate 300 pound unprocessed side at regular supermarket prices, it was found that the average price per pound for all cuts, ranging from T-bones and sirloin tip to hamburger and stew meat, was $1.36 per pound. However, purchasing all of the same cuts at sale price (usually 10 cents off the regular price), would result in an estimated $1.28 per pound average.

In addition, The Lincoln Star found that consumers who must rent lockers and also finance their purchase cut even more into their already nominal savings.

For example, cost per pound with finance and locker fees added at Outlet No. 1 rose to an estimated $1.35. Likewise, at Outlet No. 2 with locker fees and finance charges the price per pound rose to an estimated $1.24.

"If you have to borrow money to buy a side of beef, you aren't saving anything if you pay 18% interest," Mandigo noted.

As one supermarket meat manager said, "We can sell sides of beef here too, but we don't push it. Consumers save very little by buying a side or quarter of beef. Most of it is convenience."

Best Paying Jobs Found In Medicine, Law

The best paid American workers are employed in the medical and legal professions, according to an article, "Occupational Rankings for Men and Women by Earnings," in the August issue of Monthly Labor Review.

Men predominate in both fields, while the highest-ranking occupations for women are engineering and craft occupations, in which few women are employed.

The article states that women employed in occupations dominated by men earn less than men. But they earn more than women in other occupations. Conversely, men in occupations dominated by women, while earning more than women, are likely to earn less than men in other occupations.

The Many Faces Of Women's Lib

Editor's note: Today's Write On author calls herself a "very happy retiree," and says she is interested in various volunteer programs. Mrs. Auld, of Lincoln, has two children and one granddaughter.

By GERTRUDE AULD
Women's Lib Is:
For the working woman — equal pay for equal work
For the career gal — equal opportunity for advancement to high paying administrative positions for the woman who has as good or better qualifications

For the married woman without children who works — domestic help considered an expense she can deduct from the Federal Income Tax since men can deduct the wages of their secretarial and other help
For a few — the freedom to do without a brassiere and make do with a G string. This is a superficial meaning that shouldn't be taken at face value
For an even smaller minority — the right to drink, smoke, swear, tell dirty jokes in mixed company and/or compete in vulgarity with men

For the housewife — the freedom from drudgery of domestic chores and child rearing
For the happy homemaker — her present situation with all of the many labor-saving devices at her command and the freedom to do as she pleases within wide limits
For the men — a chance to feel magnanimous by supporting the movement; or a topic to gripe about depending upon their needs
For the employer of women — smaller profits, a real pain in the neck

For a man competing with a woman for a job — unfair
For society of the future — a different social attitude so that a man who enjoys domestic work might stay home and his wife be the bread winner without the neighbors or even his wife's parents being critical For myself and other idealistic (?) females — having all of the advantages of both sexes and none of the disadvantages of either!

Style Shows Losing Ground

Mrs. William Weytrauch models her headdress during the 1972 Headdress Ball, a moneymaking venture of the Lincoln Symphony Guild.

season. Ticket sales from that project netted $1,000 which was donated to the St. Elizabeth burn and trauma unit. League members select some organization each year to benefit from their fund-raising projects.

Asked about their other projects, Mrs. Leonard Foster, president, said, "You name it, we've done it."

Connected with the Holiday of Trees was a boutique. Proceeds from that went to the Children's Zoo, support of a Lincoln youngster involved in the People-to-People program, a Southeast Community College scholarship and Operation Santa Clause.

"We get a lot done and we have a lot of fun doing it," said Mrs. Foster.

An hors d'oeuvres tasting party and style show are the two "basic" moneymakers of the Community Women's Club, formerly Junior Woman's Club, according to Mickey Metzger, president.

The social event, held for the past five or six years, brings in upwards of $300 annually for the club's civic philanthropies, Mrs. Metzger said.

The fashion show, now in its 18th season, netted $800 last year.

But the Community Women's Club's most profitable moneymaker the Broadway Theater League, which brought Broadway plays to the Capital City, was dropped this year because it started losing money. "We are willing to do the work but we are not willing to lose money on it," she said.

The Lincoln Mrs. Jaycees have discontinued their traditional style show due to $1,000 for the group's major philanthropy, aid to foster children.

This year, however, the group is participating in the Jaycees' Haunted House in hopes "that it will be our big moneymaker," Mrs. Harris said.

Last year's Christmas Pilgrimage, sponsored by the Delta Gamma Alumnae, was such a huge success that the group is resting up this year, said Nancy Ernst, president.

The pilgrimage included tours of five homes at which a variety of Christmas items were offered for sale — and it added $2,700 to the group's bank roll and its philanthropy, vision screening and the Society for the Prevention of Blindness.

Other fund-raisers attempted by the group include selling holly and Christmas greens or wrapping paper. They have brought in between $300 and $600 annually, the president said.

Every year, the Bryan Service League puts on some sort of boutique or bazaar, said Evelyn Adams, Bryan's director of volunteer services.

This year's installment will be the Market Place, a sale of hand-made items.

The Round-Up of Wreaths netted the group $2,100 last year. The proceeds were turned over to the hospital for equipment, nursing scholarships and the Mobile Heart Unit.

2♦	Pass	3♠	Pass

Opening lead — six of clubs.

Let's say you're in four spades and West leads a club. You win East's king with the ace, ruff a club in dummy, draw three rounds of trumps, and try a diamond finesse. East takes the king and returns a club, whereupon West wins with the ten, shifts to a heart, and down you go.

The next day you visit your psychiatrist and tell him about the dreadful luck you encountered on the hand. After all, West could have had the king of diamonds—in which case you'd have scored thirteen tricks instead of nine — or, failing that, he could have had the decency to hold the ace of hearts — in which case you'd have made at least ten tricks.

The psychiatrist hears you out patiently and, after you rise from the couch, tells you that despite your bad luck you should have made the hand. He points out that it would have been better to let East win the first trick with the king of clubs, in which case the contract would have been frigid.

Whatever he returned, you'd be in the driver's seat. At worst you'd lose a club, a diamond and a heart, period.

Reluctantly you agree with the man — partly because he charges plenty for listening to you, and partly because his analysis is unanswerable. You tell him he's right and that you were all wrong in blaming the outcome of the hand on bad luck.

He smiles smugly upon hearing this — he feels he's earned his fee — and you leave his office wondering whether or not some of those other frustrating hands you and your partner suffered recently were entirely attributable to the vicissitudes of ill fortune.

Thirty years before we developed new Peak Toothpaste, you probably used our secret ingredient.

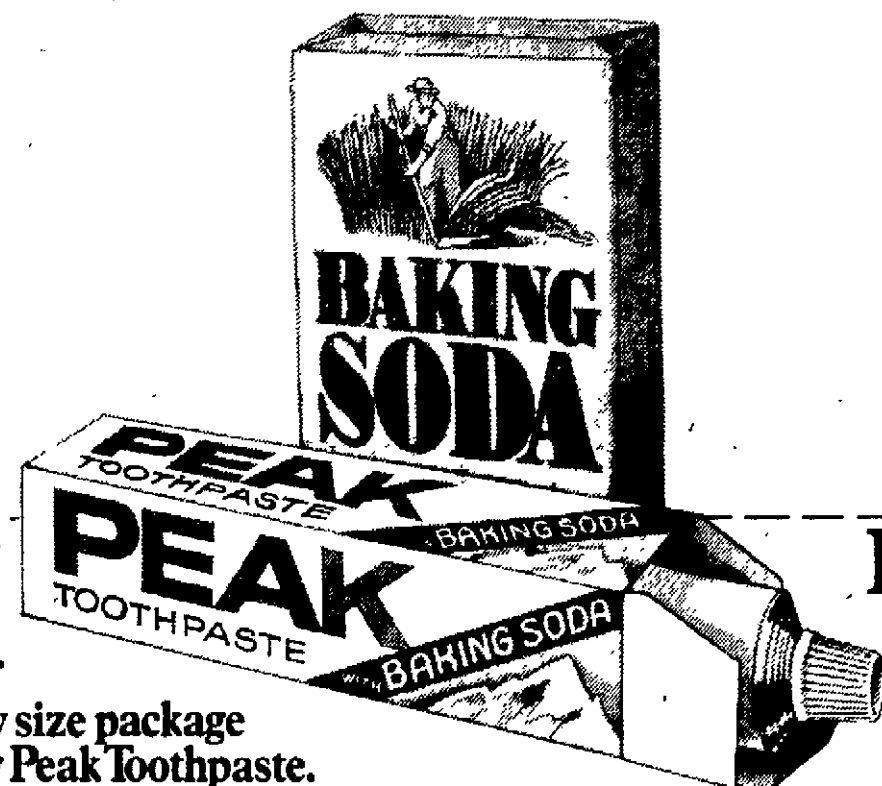

It's baking soda.

Baking soda: the natural cleanser and sweetener that people used to brush with, and that dentists still recommend. Both for cleaning teeth and as a soothing rinse for mouth and gums.

Be prepared. Peak is 97% natural ingredients, principally pure baking soda. It tastes pleasant, but different. Be prepared. Peak leaves your whole mouth—not just teeth and breath, but even mouth tissues and gums—feeling different. Feeling naturally cleansed and sweetened. Naturally refreshed. Uncomplicate.

Try new Peak: the first modern toothpaste with the natural goodness of baking soda.

If Patient Asks, You Can Talk

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: In your reply to "Scared," who was dating a young man who had been arrested for indecent exposure, you recommended that if the man claimed to have had therapy, she should ask to talk to his therapist.

As a practicing therapist, I must take exception to that advice. If I were confronted with such a request, I would have to explain that to do so would be violating professional ethics.

I know of one psychiatrist who was successfully sued for divulging information under similar circumstances. This is as it should be, since the therapist is the agent of the patient, not of others.

"Scared" should obtain information about exhibitionism in general from a professional in the mental health field (not from her boyfriend's therapist, if he has one).

NEW YORK PSYCHIATRIST DEAR PSYCHIATRIST: I did not suggest that the young woman should attempt to get privileged information from her boyfriend's therapist without the boyfriend's consent.

It would seem that if the boyfriend had indeed had treatment and the girl was in no danger by continuing to go with him, he would be eager for her to talk to his therapist for reassurance.

If a patient asked you to talk to his girl friend, would you then refuse to see her?

DEAR ABBY: This is in reference to the family who, when relaxing outdoors at a barbecue, or just sitting and visiting, were always "joined" by a neighbor, who stayed until they went inside, even when they were entertaining guests.

You advised the writer to either suffer the intruder's presence, or tell her that you'd like a little privacy.

May I add another solution? Why not build a six-foot fence? AL CENTENO, HOUSTON, TEXAS

DEAR AL: That's a pretty sneaky way to get a plug in for the fence business, but it's a good idea for those who can afford it. How about a moat stocked with crocodiles?

DEAR ABBY: I have had it! All summer long we ran a free hotel for my husband's relatives. His sister and her husband came for six weeks. His brother and his wife came for two weeks. (The brother used my car, so I had to take taxis the whole time!) Others took turns. We had company from June 1st until after Labor Day.

No one offered to give me a lift with the work, and my grocery bills were like, forget it. Nobody even picked up the tab when we ate out. (We are supposed to be "the poor relatives" compared to them.)

I've put up with this for three summers, and I'm sick of it. How can I keep this from happening next summer short of divorcing my husband? He's a soft touch.

HAD IT IN WISCONSIN

DEAR HAD IT: They're your husband's relatives. HE should tell them what the ground rules shall be for future visits. If he refuses, then YOU tell them. And if you don't, you can expect a re-run of the last three summers and every summer henceforth. And if it happens, don't complain. You're both a couple of soft touches.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ARGUING ENDLESSLY": You can end the endless argument about religion with a brilliant quote by Bradford Leavitt: "If your religion makes you kinder than I, your religion is better than mine."

Faculty Senate To Eye Bylaws

The University of Nebraska-Lincoln Faculty Senate will hold a special meeting Tuesday to consider proposed UNL bylaws, according to President Richard E. Gilbert.

UNL Chancellor James H. Zumbeke is seeking endorsement or comment or both on the bylaws from the Faculty Senate by Oct. 18.

"To discuss these bylaws as fully as possible," Gilbert said, he called the special meeting. He said he is "also holding open Tuesday, Oct. 15, for an additional special meeting if it is desired."

The Faculty Senate will also hold its regular meeting on Oct. 8, Gilbert said.

"Since the chancellor has not asked for ratification on a take-it-or-leave-it basis, we must assume that our comments will be considered seriously prior to submission of the document to the (NU) Board of Regents," he said.

Abel Wins Surfacing Contract

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday awarded the contract for one mile of asphaltic concrete surfacing on West A to the apparent low bidder, Abel Const. Co.

Abel submitted a $74,095.55 bid, while the only other bid was Dobson Bros. Const. Co., for $75,058.74.

Lancaster County Engineer Walter Hoppe said the county had done the grading on the project which extends from Southwest 40th west one mile.

In other business, representatives of Kawasaki and Crete Carrier requested they be placed on the agenda for the Oct. 1 meeting in regard to surfacing county roads.

Stanley Esbenschade of Kawasaki told the board his firm is concerned that Fletcher and Northwest 27th, which give access to the plant, will not be passable when the plant begins production Jan. 2.

He said since it was learned the county did not have funds to surface the road, Kawasaki would like to enter into an agreement with the county to pay the total cost for surfacing.

A representative for Crete Carrier said his company would like to enter into a similar agreement for the surfacing of 900 feet on Northwest 56th to give access to that industry.

Hoppe estimated the Kawasaki project would cost about $55,000, while the Crete Carrier project would total about $24,000.

Purse Snatches Said Solved By Youth's Arrest

Three youths have been arrested in connection with several purse snatches in recent weeks, according to police.

The youths were arrested after a purse was snatched from the grasp of Ella Eckstein, 52, of 3825 N. 44th outside Bryan Memorial Hospital.

Police said a citizen alerted by the woman's shouts saw the youth enter a car and remembered the license number, enabling police to trace the three.

Police said the arrests solve about four purse snatches in the past several weeks. Two of the youths were 17 years old and the third was 18, police said.

Glancy Named To Kiwanis Post

Herbert H. Glancy of Lincoln will be installed Oct. 3, as lieutenant governor of division 14 of the Nebraska-Iowa District of Kiwanis.

John W. Tomlinson of Lincoln will relinquish the position at a 6:30 p.m. ceremony at the Lincoln East Hills Supper Club.

Glancy, a Lincoln realtor and insurance agent, has been a member of the Northeast Lincoln Club for 10 years.

There are 16 lieutenant governors in the district, which has 164 clubs and more than 7,300 members.

GOP Needs 'Gumption'

Des Moines (UPI) — House minority leader John Rhodes, R-Ariz., came to "where the tall corn and good Republicans grow" and called on the Iowa Republican Party faithful to "spit the odds in the eye," show "gumption" and blast their democratic foes out of office Nov. 5.

Five Deserters Consent To Picture

Among more than 100 Vietnam war-era deserters arriving at Camp Atterbury, Ind., were five who consented to photographs and interviews. From the left, they are Thomas Oney, 25, of Dayton, Ohio; Walter E. Kriner, 31, of Indianapolis; Eugene Wade, 27, of Alliance, Ohio; David E. Thoman, 24, of Columbus, Ohio, and James Hatcher, 25, of Cleveland, Ohio.

Commission To Preview NETV's Fall Programs

The Nebraska Educational Television Commission will get a preview of NETV network fall programming at its monthly public meeting Thursday.

Commissioners will meet at 1:30 p.m. in the board room of the Nebraska Educational Telecommunications Center, 1800 N. 33rd, according to commission secretary Jack McBride.

Network program manager Ron Hull will present previews of new Public Broadcasting Service programs and several new locally produced programs.

Richard Raacke, Instructional Television (ITV) Services administrator for the Nebraska Department of Education, will describe the ITV program schedules for elementary and secondary schools.

Lee Rockwell, executive director of the Nebraska Educational Television Council for Higher Education, will discuss programs for higher education levels.

The commissioners will hear a progress report on the new State University of Nebraska (SUN) accounting course, and Boyd Rooney, NETV network assistant general manager for operations, will present a report.

'Pieces Of A City' Topic For Seminar

Want a crash course on what's happening on the Lincoln scene? Take a look at "The Pieces of a City, Today and Beyond," a seven-week community involvement series sponsored by Lincoln Community Services and the Junior League.

Through their efforts and with the help of other community organizations, eight-session seminar with for everyone is set.

There will be addresses by four prominent out-of-staters:

—Bob Teska, consultant for Barton-Aschman Associates, contractors for the revision of the Lincoln-Lancaster County Comprehensive Plan.

—Dr. Margaret N. Shaw, board member of the National Center for Voluntary Action.

—James Beard, "America's leading authority on food."

It all begins Oct. 9 with an investigation of The Comprehensive Planning Process: How Can We Be Involved? Teska will speak at that one.

Next will come a town-hall meeting with participants splitting up to discuss such things as land use, transportation, community facilities, housing, the central business district, zoning and subdivision regulations, capital improvement and utilities and taxes.

Oct. 16 participants will have "A Day with Nature," at the Lincoln Children's Zoo and the Chet Ager Nature Center, complete with tours and speakers.

City-County government will be the subject of the Oct. 24 session. Following the address by Waters, a panel of task force representatives will discuss police services, fire protection, personnel, public works, budget and public purchasing plans.

"Family Power — Family Stress" will be taken up at two sessions. Oct. 30, Jack O'Shea, executive director of the Family Service Association, will discuss the family's role in human success and failure, and panelists will tackle childrearing and economics of family life.

The Nov. 6 family series will continue with panels on physical and mental handicaps and aging and death.

Voluntarism will be the topic for Nov. 12 with Dr. Shaw addressing a noon luncheon at the Lincoln Hilton. Later that afternoon, she will conduct a workshop on managing volunteers and volunteer programs.

Volunteers and the courts, with particular emphasis on referral and volunteer probation programs, will be featured Nov. 13.

Concluding the series will be "an Evening of Artful Conversation" Nov. 18. Following a tour of Sheldon Art Gallery, Beard will present a lecture-demonstration on "The Art of Bread Making."

Interested persons may register for any or all of the individual programs. No registration fee will be assessed, with the exception of the Oct. 16 and Nov. 12 luncheons.

Further information may be obtained from the Volunteer Bureau.

Officer Commended, Suspended

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — A 19-year veteran of the police force received a letter of commendation for slugging a gunman with empty milk bottles to break up a robbery and a two-day suspension for not being properly armed in doing his duty.

Sgt. Elmer McIntosh, 49, said Tuesday he will not contest the suspension, which will cost him $120 in pay. "But," he added, "I still insist that the metal container of four empty half gallon bottles that I carried into the store constituted a weapon."

McIntosh was off duty when he walked into the dairy store Friday night, interrupting an armed robbery. He was not carrying his gun.

"This one guy grabbed me and held a gun under my ear," he said.

"He let the gun down a little and I took a swing at him with the container of empty bottles ... As he staggered back, he fired at me and took another shot at me later when I was behind some doors shouting that I was a police officer. The other gunman fled and is still at large. The one I hit ... was found nearby."

Acting Police Chief Salvatore Pisano said the milk bottles didn't count as a weapon, but added: "Although he (McIntosh) violated the rules by not carrying a weapon and put himself in a dangerous position ... he still conducted himself beyond call of duty."

In a formal letter to McIntosh,

Pisano said, "I am sure you are aware that this was a difficult decision for me to make in the light of the bravery you displayed ... However, the rule on carrying a gun at all times is one of our important ones ..."

McIntosh says he forgot to transfer a revolver from the glove compartment of one of his two cars to the other and that's why he didn't have the gun.

Richard Morris, 25, of Peoria was charged with armed robbery and armed violence.

Moratorium Proposed

Chicago (UPI) — Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill. proposed that the United States declare a one-year moratorium on the sale of nuclear reactors to other nations.

Announcing the first ready-to-use cholesterol-free egg substitute: SECOND NATURE™

because it's made from real eggs.

Now Man and Hen, working together, bring you a major breakthrough—Second Nature.

It's a cholesterol-free egg substitute that tastes so much like fresh eggs, most people can't tell the difference. Which is only natural because Second Nature contains all of the fresh egg white of natural egg. The only substitution is in the yolk, the source of high fat content and cholesterol—and, in fact, the highest source of cholesterol in our daily diet.

This is why most doctors and the American Heart Association suggest a limit of 3 eggs per week—including both eating and cooking.

But with Second Nature, you can eat your fill—starting with tomorrow's breakfast. They're delicious scrambled, in omelettes, pancakes, French toast, sauces—any recipes that call for whole beaten eggs. For all home-baking, plus packaged mixes of all kinds—cakes, muffins, brownies, biscuits.

*One large hen egg contains 275 mg. of cholesterol. An equal serving of Second Nature (1 1/2 oz.) contains less than 1 mg.

- * 1/2 the calories of regular eggs.
- * Protein quality of regular eggs.
- * 1 1/2 ounces contain the equivalent of one large egg.
- * Fresh—in the egg case or dairy section—not the freezer.

Private Schools Change, Increase Enrollment

NEW YORK (AP) — Skimming a national wave of rising enrollments, a private school that has numbered Rockefellers, Deweys and Tafts among its pupils bought a new building five years ago, planned to expand — and nearly went broke.

Like many other nonpublic schools in the early 1970s, the Everett School was in trouble. Overnight, its enrollment plummeted from 300 to 30.

But today, chastened and changed, the Everett School and other surviving private elementary and secondary schools are reported healthier.

Their comparative health results from increased flexibility and economy to counter soaring teachers' salaries, higher fuel and food costs and fewer parents able to afford private education.

"Enrollment is holding its own or doing better in all the elements except the Catholic schools," says Robert L. Lamborn, executive director of the Council for American Private Education.

The council represents groups responsible for educating 96 percent of the five million children that the government estimates now attend nonpublic schools.

"The situation is certainly substantially better than it was a couple of years ago," according to Lamborn, who adds that this year's statistics aren't available.

With enrollment more or less under control, government officials and private schools spokesmen say that inflation remains the biggest problem.

"They've been hit very hard by inflation," says Dwight Crum, the federal government's coordinator for nonpublic educational services.

year. Then she advertised the changes in New York magazine and a local radio station.

"Schools do not advertise traditionally," she said. "It was a hard decision to make."

But it's a decision schools are making more and more often.

He says that changes boarding schools have implemented mean that for the first year in several years they seem to be showing an increased enrollment. At the less expensive day schools, enrollment has risen yearly from 1 to 2.5 per cent in the last decade, he says.

Unpredictable Proud Didn't Doubt Authority

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

"Well, it seemed like the thing to do," the unpredictable Richard Proud explained Tuesday.

"The thing to do, in this case, was to use his day-long authority as acting governor to summon the Legislature into special session."

"Purpose of the meeting, proclaimed to begin promptly at 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 7, to consider an increase in Nebraska's 9% usury limit."

"I was informed this morning that the governor was out of the state until 9 p.m., and the lieutenant governor was out until 7:30 p.m.," Proud explained in a telephone interview.

Acting Governor
That made Proud, speaker of the Legislature, the acting governor.

"So it seemed like a good time to do it," he pointed out in an excess of understatement.

"Proud said he never doubted his authority as acting governor to call a special session, but he thought it 'quite possible' that Gov. J. James Exon could rescind the proclamation once he returned to the state."

"That would be up to him," Proud suggested.

"In any event, he said, he thinks a change in the usury maximum should be considered 'since many people are now precluded from buying homes and realtors are going out of business' due to the inability to finance purchases at 9%."

So Governor Proud pulled out a sheet of paper in his office at Mutual of Omaha headquarters in Omaha and summoned his 48 legislative colleagues into special session.

"Did it in Loughand?" "I did it in Loughand," Proud said. "If that was good enough for Abraham Lincoln, it's good enough for me."

"I wrote it, I signed it, and I filed it. I consider it official."

Proud said his decision did not relate at all to any desire to provide pre-election exposure for Sen. Richard Marvel, his Republican colleague who is seeking the governorship. Proud is also a Republican.

"No connection at all," he said. "He was in here campaigning today. I did see him at lunch and mentioned it to him. But he said nothing at all about it."

"I did this without seeking anybody's advice," Proud declared, adding, somewhat wistfully, "perhaps to my everlasting regret."

Proud has always cherished the element of surprise in his colorful career as keeper of one of the Legislature's most sardonic wits. His oratory has always been spiced with savory one-liners.

And the surprises have not been limited to verbal pronouncements.

Wore Bib Overalls
One day in 1966 he appeared in the Legislature with his lanky frame enclosed by bib overalls — ostensibly to show support for the common man. It was only later that he admitted that the deed won him a bet.

In 1973, Proud became the scourge of women's liberation when he successfully led the way toward legislative repeal of a 1972 resolution ratifying the equal rights amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

In 1974, Proud was the driving force in seeking a meeting of Nebraska legislators with President Nixon to discuss energy problems. The Legislature voted to descend upon the White House en masse but, in the end, Nixon met alone with Proud.

Proud is retiring from the Unicameral in January after 10 years service.

His dramatic thrust Tuesday was the boldest attempt to use an acting governor's authority since Dwight Burney appointed Eugene Mahoney to the Legislature in 1961 when then-Gov. Frank Morrison was in Hawaii.

That appointment stuck.

But Mahoney, who was then a Republican named by a Republican lieutenant governor in the absence of a Democratic governor, has since become a Democrat.

Statehouse Chandelier Falls

Was it Unicameral Speaker Richard Proud's call for a special legislative session Tuesday that sent the Capitol's 3,500-pound chandelier crashing to the rotunda floor? Some state employees said so, but a spokesman said the chandelier apparently slid off its stand while workmen were replacing lightbulbs. Other than some broken glass, there was no visible damage to the chandelier or the floor's mosaic. (Star Photo)

The Way It Was 102 Years Ago

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Call it deja vu, a reincarnation or just an interesting historical parallel.

But 102 years ago Unicameral Speaker Richard Proud of Omaha had a counterpart. He was Isaac S. Hascall, also of Omaha, who was a state senator and president of the Nebraska Senate.

It was Hascall who set the stage for the Nebraska Supreme Court's 1872 ruling which Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer said Tuesday prevents Proud as acting governor from calling a special legislative session.

The incident occurred shortly after Gov. David Butler, a Republican, was impeached for embezzling $16,000 in federal money from school land sales.

Butler's successor, Secretary of State W. H. James, left the state in February 1872 on business in Washington state.

When Hascall learned of James' departure, he wrote up a proclamation calling a special legislative session and tricked James' private secretary into giving him the state seal long enough to stamp the proclamation.

The purpose of the special session was a potpourri of business, unlike Proud's which deals solely with the usury rates.

Hascall, among other things, wanted to encourage immigration to Nebraska by appropriating funds for inducements and to investigate a vague charge of misconduct by a state official.

James learned of Hascall's maneuvering and returned to the state only two days before the session was to begin. To head off the legislative session, he signed a proclamation rescinding the call.

The issue went to the Nebraska Supreme Court immediately. The court ruled in James' favor, with some harsh words for Hascall and others.

Judge J. Crounse said Hascall's actions "have made the character of the state subject to jeer abroad, and occasioned every good citizen to blush to acknowledge that he is a member of it."

Old West Governors Push Airport Plans

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Governors of the five member states in the Old West Regional Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to embark on a plan that could lead to construction of a regional airport equal in size and service to that of a major metropolitan area.

The governors of the Dakotas, Wyoming, Montana and Nebraska approved a three-part motion that:

1. Authorizes South Dakota Gov. Richard Kneip, a co-chairman of the commission, to discuss with the U.S. secretary of transportation the possibility of federal participation in the regional airport;

2. Forwards to aeronautics departments of the five states a regional airport feasibility report, and requests their recommendations on further action; and,

3. Authorizes commission officials to accept proposals from consulting firms for further study of the regional airport concept.

The motion, offered by Nebraska Gov. J. James Exon, followed a report from spokesmen for a consulting firm that undertook the first phase of a regional airport feasibility study.

The spokesmen for Landrum and Brown told the governors their initial study showed there is no economic justification for a major connecting airport for nonstop international air service within the region.

They said there is, however, a strong regional demand for one-stop air service in and out of the region. They said the study also showed there is significant potential for movement of cargo from a regional airport.

In addition, they said, the study showed a regional airport is economically and financially feasible and would have a favorable impact on the economic and industrial sectors of the region.

Passenger projections indicate that more than 1 million air passengers could be served by a regional facility by 1985—comparable to airport operations at Salt Lake City, Utah, or Buffalo, N.Y. The projections showed that by the year 2,000, twice that number could be served.

The company planners envision a facility that would include two 12,000-foot runways, encompass 4,400 acres by the year 2,000 and cost nearly $90 million to construct. Of that figure, they said, $51.5 million could be financed by federal funds.

Kneip said his personal assessment of the findings is that Rapid City, located at the pivotal point of the five-state region, would be the best site for a regional airport. A company of official agreed with Kneip.

"If you had to arbitrarily pick a point, that Rapid City is the point," the company spokesman said.

Site selection will be the subject of further studies.

Nebraska City Ed Board: Contract Talks Not Ended

By The Associated Press

The state Court of Industrial Relations has been asked to send a contract dispute back to the Nebraska City Board of Education and the local education association for further talks.

Board attorney Verne Moore of Omaha said there was still room for negotiation, even though the board would not consider further talks on a 5% increase factor for educational advancement sought by the teachers.

The association wants a 5% pay hike for each nine hours of additional college credit a teacher receives, and is asking the court to order such a settlement.

Moore said the board would not consider more than 4% on the educational advancement factor.

Moore and Ted Kessner, the attorney representing the teachers, agreed the argument over the educational advancement pay was at the heart of the suit.

Kessner noted a fact-finding board previously recommended a base teacher salary of $7,350 with 5% for educational advancement, and 4% for experience.

Kessner presented several exhibits which compared Nebraska City's salaries and benefits with those available in surrounding schools.

Classes Still Open
At Easterday Center

The Easterday City Recreation Center still has openings in adult and grade school crafts, aerobatics and tumbling, advanced guitar and grade school and junior high school karate classes.

Champ Shown By Leigh Youth

Omaha (AP) — Another Ak-Sar-Ben steer contending for the grand championship was selected Tuesday.

Loren Tejkl Jr., 13, of Leigh showed a 1,310-pound Chianina-Herford crossbred named Alfie to the performance championship.

The steer recorded a weight per day of age of 2.83 pounds and was the only purple ribbon winner of 23 entries.

Young Tejkl showed the grand champion heifer feeder calf on Monday.

Inflation Said No. 1 Farm Worry

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

Broken Bow—Ed Andersen, master of the Nebraska Grange, Tuesday warned Grange members meeting here in their annual state convention that inflation was the major problem facing Nebraska farmers, suggesting that Americans need to "tighten our belt."

Andersen urged people to stop buying things we don't actually need as an inflation fighting measure.

Andersen called on government to cut back on spending programs, end deficit spending and asked "consumer protection groups and environmentalists to realize the need for a common sense approach to all problems."

Andersen said "labor unions cannot hope to curb inflation with automatic cost-of-living contracts."

Andersen described Dr. Duane Acker, vice chancellor for the Institute of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Nebraska, as "a tremendous asset to rural Nebraska."

Party To Blame

Andersen told the livestock feeders in his audience that farmers themselves were partly to blame for lower beef prices because they marketed cattle at excessively heavy weights.

The state master cited "government meat controls, a poor grain harvest, unlimited meat imports, increased dairy imports and truckers' strikes" as a part of the meat price problem.

Andersen recommended that the Grange support efforts by the Nebraska Soybean Association to organize a checkoff on soybeans produced in the state to finance research and promotion of soybeans.

Andersen called upon Grange members to "become involved in local land use programs. Remember that we do need land to produce food. This is a fact that is sometimes forgotten."

"Recent court action indicates our cooperative law is strong enough to enable us to do a better job of marketing if we would just use them," he said.

Andersen suggested that "Many of our farmer cooperatives in Nebraska are too small a unit to compete in today's business world," and warned that such small cooperatives need "better financing, better management, modern facilities and loyal membership" to survive.

Consolidation Urged
"I believe cooperatives can become more effective in many areas of our state by consolidating their units and becoming members of regional units," he said.

Wednesday will be a special day for political leaders at the Grange meeting with gubernatorial candidates invited to speak to the group.

State Senators Ramie Whitney of Chappell and Jerry Whitney of Waverly will present opposing points of view on the state aid to education bill that will be on the ballot at this fall's election.

The convention will wind up Thursday with a new set of resolutions setting official Grange policy for the coming year.

Troubled Cattle Industry Seeks Aid Of Politicians

By ED HOWARD and ERIC KRAMER
Associated Press Writers

The financially troubled cattle industry found itself deep in politics Tuesday as an organization called "Cattle Feeders For Exon" surfaced, and two Republican state senators asked the governor to join them in seeking a meeting with the White House.

Gov. J. James Exon said he was aware of the group supporting him. Exon said several cattle feeders approached him last week and he approved formation of the organization.

In a related development, State Sens. John DeCamp and Loran Schmit called on the Democratic governor to accompany them to "go to see President Ford himself or someone who can communicate with the President and explain the gravity of the situation and insist on some action from the President himself."

Meanwhile, there were indications that still another Washington cattle meeting was being planned.

M. J. Hankins, a Stanton, Neb., cattle feeder said he knew of one proposed meeting but could not comment on it. He did say that it would not be accurate to call the proposed cattle meeting a White House conference.

Last spring, Hankins was not invited to a White House cattle conference, even though Hankins was one of the prime organizers of the event.

DeCamp said Hankins had to be speaking of a meeting other than the one proposed by he and Schmit.

Exon said he was continuing his support for a proposed Justice Department investigation into the spread and retail meat costs. Exon previously announced he was in favor of the investigation, suggested by Utah Gov. Cal Rampton, and said he would like to see a meeting set up with U.S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe.

Exon said he knew of no other Washington meetings but he said he would be willing "to do anything I could, to meet with anyone to help out in this serious plight that we find ourselves in today."

Schmit and DeCamp issued a statement saying "This time we don't want to talk to any third echelon people or clerks. We want to talk to the man himself — President Ford himself."

DeCamp said "I believe if Governor Exon, other governors, other congressmen and state officials from the cattle producing states will go with us as a team to the President that he will not refuse to see us."

The statement noted DeCamp and Schmit appeared before a U.S. Senate subcommittee 90 days ago and said the cattle industry would suffer irreparable damage "unless something is done immediately."

"I am not sure anybody east of Chicago even begins to comprehend the magnitude of the problem," DeCamp said.

Schmit and DeCamp said their invitation to Exon was issued at a meeting of the Nuckolls County Livestock Feeders.

Finding Of Sex Discrimination Overturned By District Court

By The Associated Press

A district court has ruled against a former State Crime Commission employee who charged she was the victim of sex discrimination.

District Judge Dale Fahrbruch said there was no evidence that Mrs. Stephanie Rouse of Columbus was discriminated against because of her sex.

His ruling overturns an order by the Nebraska Equal Opportunity Commission that the state agency award Mrs. Rouse $6,220 for alleged job discrimination.

Mrs. Rouse began working for the commission as an editorial assistant in 1969, but resigned 16 months later because of pregnancy.

Her initial salary was $6,000 annually.

Her replacement, a man, was employed at a salary of $10,000 although two women who also applied for her job were offered salaries of $6,000 and $6,500 respectively.

Mrs. Rouse alleged the higher salary allowed the man who replaced her amounted to a violation of the state's equal-pay-for-equal-work law, and filed a complaint with the EOC.

The EOC upheld her charge following a hearing in October of 1972, and ordered the state agency to compensate her for the loss of wages during the time she was employed.

That hearing was the first sex discrimination charge filed in Lincoln and the first in which a state agency was charged with violating antidiscrimination laws.

The state agency argued that her replacement was given a higher salary because he had different and more responsibilities than Mrs. Rouse.

The state attorney general's office appealed the EOC ruling to district court in November 1972, and the court ruling in favor of the Crime Commission stemmed from that appeal.

Omahan Killed, Wife, Son Hurt In Greek Crash

Omaha (UPI) — A traffic accident in Greece has claimed the life of a career Air Force sergeant from Omaha and has injured his wife and son.

The family of S. Sgt. Donald J. (Mike) Risch, 34, Omaha, said he was killed Sunday in a one-car crash near Thieve, Greece.

Risch's wife, Gerland, expects to be released soon from the U.S. Air Force hospital in Athens. Their son, Christopher, 4, was hospitalized after the accident but has been released.

Risch had been stationed in Greece for about two years. The mishap occurred while the family was on a camping holiday.

Risch's father, Don, is an Omaha insurance executive.

Rain Threatens Sorghum Seed Crop In Texas

Lubbock, Tex. — Officials of the Sorghum Growers Association are expressing concern over the nation's sorghum seed supply, which largely comes from Texas.

"We have had 29 continuous hours of rain with lots more rain in the last 10 days. Streets are washed with water here in Lubbock, and most everywhere south of here it's worse," said Y. F. Snodgrass of the growers organization.

Snodgrass estimated that it would take at least 10 days to dry out the fields after the rains stopped. "We are setting on a seed time bomb if it doesn't stop raining soon," he said.

Cotton crops are said to be deteriorating as well. "The drought seems to be broken for a while anyway," he said.

Family Finally Off Bus

Omaha (AP) — A two-month residency in a 12-year-old battered school bus has ended for Mr. and Mrs. Marion Roberts and their seven children.

The family had lived in their bus since vandals broke the windows of a house they were renting in Omaha and they decided to move out. Mrs. Roberts said the family was unable to find a landlord who would accept a family with seven children.

Roberts said government-assisted housing was unavailable because he made between $10,000 and $12,000 a year as a heavy equipment operator, and he couldn't afford the rent of places which would accept the large family.

Offers of housing came after a newspaper story about the family's plight.

The Roberts' rented a three-bedroom frame home owned by Mrs. Robert Bragg, widow of a former Omaha policeman. Mrs. Bragg said the rent terms were payment of $100 monthly with the second month free in exchange for maintenance work to be done by Roberts.

"I've been there myself, so I understand," Mrs. Bragg said. She explained that she and her husband had four children and were turned down in attempts to rent housing.

Lack of a permanent address had prevented the Roberts' six school age children, ranging in age from 7 to 15, from attending school.

Dr. Joe Hanna, associate superintendent of the Omaha Public Schools, said "safety and accountability" were reasons for requiring a permanent address. Placing students in their geographical areas provides a "dependable point of contact with the parents," he said.

During the two months, Roberts drove the bus to recreation areas at night where the family had access to toilet facilities, showers and picnic tables. Mornings, Roberts drove the family to nearby Elkhorn to eat breakfast at his father's house.

TWO MONTHS... of living in old bus over for Omaha family of nine.

2 Holdrege Escapees Are In Custody Again

By United Press International Two of the five inmates who escaped last week from the Phelps County jail at Holdrege, Neb., were back in custody Tuesday.

Michael Gaughan, 16, of New Mexico was picked up Monday by authorities in Emporia, Kan. He escaped last Wednesday night when he broke a pipe loose and pried a lock on his cell.

Michael McClure, 22, of Detroit, Mich., surrendered

Saturday to police in Kearney, Neb.

McClure and three other inmates had escaped Thursday night from their ground floor cell.

Phelps County Sheriff Dwayne Newman said the four apparently had outside help in obtaining a saw used by one of the men to cut the cell bars.

The other three inmates who escaped with McClure were still at large Tuesday.

Cow's Death Blamed On Lightning

Weeping Water (UPI) — Test results received from Kansas State University show a cow found mutilated earlier this month on a farm east of here was probably struck and killed by lightning. Larry Stuckey, a Plattsmouth veterinarian who received the report, said it also showed that the mutilation on the cow "was the result of predators feeding on the carcass." The dead animal was found on the Richard Nielsen farm, and the probe into its death was initiated by the Cass County sheriff's office.

Platte County Jail Reopens

Columbus (UPI) — The Platte County jail, closed by a district judge last summer, reopened this week. Sheriff Don Franzen said stipulations for reopening made by Judge Thomas White of Columbus had been met, including $1,200 repair work on the structure itself. In addition, Franzen said additional deputies have been hired to man the facility 24 hours a day and will rotate their services between the jail and communities outside the Columbus area.

Billings, Omaha Frontier Service Ending

Rapid City, S.D. (AP) — Frontier Airlines will discontinue service between Billings, Mont., and Omaha, Neb., as of Oct. 1, a member of the company's board of directors announced Tuesday. Hoadley Dean of Rapid City said the flight, which makes a stop in Rapid City, was dropped for economic reasons. He said the flight has been averaging fewer than 18 passengers a day between Rapid City and Omaha, and fewer than 10 a day between Billings and Rapid City.

Northeast REA Loan Approved

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., said Tuesday he was advised that the Rural Electrification Administration has approved a $244,000 loan to the Northeast Nebraska Rural Public Power District. The district, headquartered at Emerson, serves customers in Cedar, Dakota, Dixon, Thurston and Wayne counties. The money will be used to finance service for 45 additional customers, 15 miles of new distribution line, and other system improvements.

Dana Homecoming Plans Completed

Blair (UPI) — "A million miles of music" is the theme for homecoming weekend Oct. 4-5 at Dana College here, which also marks the 50th anniversary of the Dana College choir tour. The choir has traveled to practically every state, Canada, the Orient and Europe during the past 50 years, logging over one million musical miles. Several events are planned on campus in observance of the anniversary, including a "music on the mall" presentation Friday night and a dinner and program Saturday night. Other events include the coronation of the 1974 homecoming queen, a "meet the coaches" luncheon Saturday, and the traditional homecoming football game at 2 p.m. Saturday when the Vikings meet the Bulldogs of Concordia College.

Education Dept. Awaits School Request For Help

By United Press International A spokesman said Tuesday the State Education Department has no intention of moving in on any public school just because minority problems are suspected.

Mrs. Edith M. Harvey, who began working for the department in July as head of a new equal opportunity in education program, said the department will help out with minority problems only if a school district seeks help.

"We don't even define the problem," Mrs. Harvey said in an interview. "They do that."

She said the primary reason for the approach is because if a district can identify a problem on its own, solving it is a relatively easy matter because the wish to change is there.

Federal Grant
The project was started this year with an initial grant of $72,292 from the federal government under the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

Mrs. Harvey said the department would have to re-apply at the end of the current year if it wants to continue the program.

The request for the money and the new program in the education department was based, Mrs.

Harvey said, on problems that an initial list of 11 schools said they wanted some help on.

That initial list included the school systems of Alliance, Grand Island, Kearney, Lincoln, Minatare, Mitchell, Morrill, North Platte, Scottsbluff, Winnebago and the Santee Public schools.

Since then, Mrs. Harvey said Ft. Calhoun, Papillion, Gordon, Shelton and District 66 in Omaha have been added to the list.

Teacher Awareness
Mrs. Harvey said most assistance requests centered on teacher awareness of minorities.

Unless they have previously had extensive experience with minorities, Mrs. Harvey posed the question of "How do they know if they are saying the wrong thing or the right thing to a minority child?"

Another thing schools have asked for help on, she said, is the selection of classroom materials that are suitable and how to use them properly.

In all, the department set six objectives for assistance under the new program.

Heading the list is helping improve classroom materials and counseling techniques for desegregated classrooms.

Another is to help solve community and school problems created by desegregation as well as to provide information on the availability of state and federal funds concerning desegregated activities.

Other objectives include promoting cultural studies, helping recruit minority staff members and maintaining records of studies on minorities.

LES Offers To Purchase NPPD Lines, Substations

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

In a bid to establish a more independent position as an electric utility, the Lincoln Electric System Tuesday submitted a "final," non-negotiable offer to resolve its differences with the Nebraska Public Power District.

LES is a wholesale customer of NPPD.

In exchange for a firm offer to purchase 175 megawatts of energy from NPPD annually until 1992 and waive rate overcharge claims which could total $31 million, LES seeks to terminate its 1970 operating agreement with NPPD and purchase NPPD transmission lines and substations located within its service area.

It would be LES' intention to create a 345-kilovolt transmission loop around the LES service area and effect an interconnection with the Omaha Public Power District.

OPPD and other regional utilities could then become an alternative source of wholesale power for the Lincoln utility.

LES is also considering future long-term construction of its own generation facilities.

In Columbus, the LES offer triggered adverse reaction from two members of the NPPD team of negotiators which has been meeting with LES negotiators to resolve long-standing differences which have lead to two lawsuits.

John Brogan of York, Chairman of the NPPD team, said LES has "pulled back on several points that NPPD thought the two committees had resolved."

The new offer "completely departs" from previous agreements, he said.

Another NPPD board meeting, Robert Peterson of Lincoln, said he is "completely shocked and disappointed with the LES ultimatum of a take-it-or-leave-it proposal."

The NPPD team will evaluate the offer and report its recommendations to the Oct. 24-25 meeting of the NPPD board of directors, Brogan said.

"This proposal sets forth a philosophy," Tom Allman, chairman of the LES Administrative Board's negotiating team, wrote NPPD negotiators.

"It infers that LES needs to be a utility and wishes to be treated like one.

"In reality, it looks as if the NPPD-LES posture is changing from LES being a wholesale customer to that of a sister utility. We hope you and your board can realize and accept this fact."

The proposal is submitted as "a complete package," Allman said. "No part is offered nor can it be accepted unless the entire proposal is offered."

The offer represents "a compromise" between previous LES and NPPD positions, he wrote.

"...these terms are no longer negotiable and constitute our final offer of settlement," he said.

NPPD was given 30 days to accept or refuse the proposal.

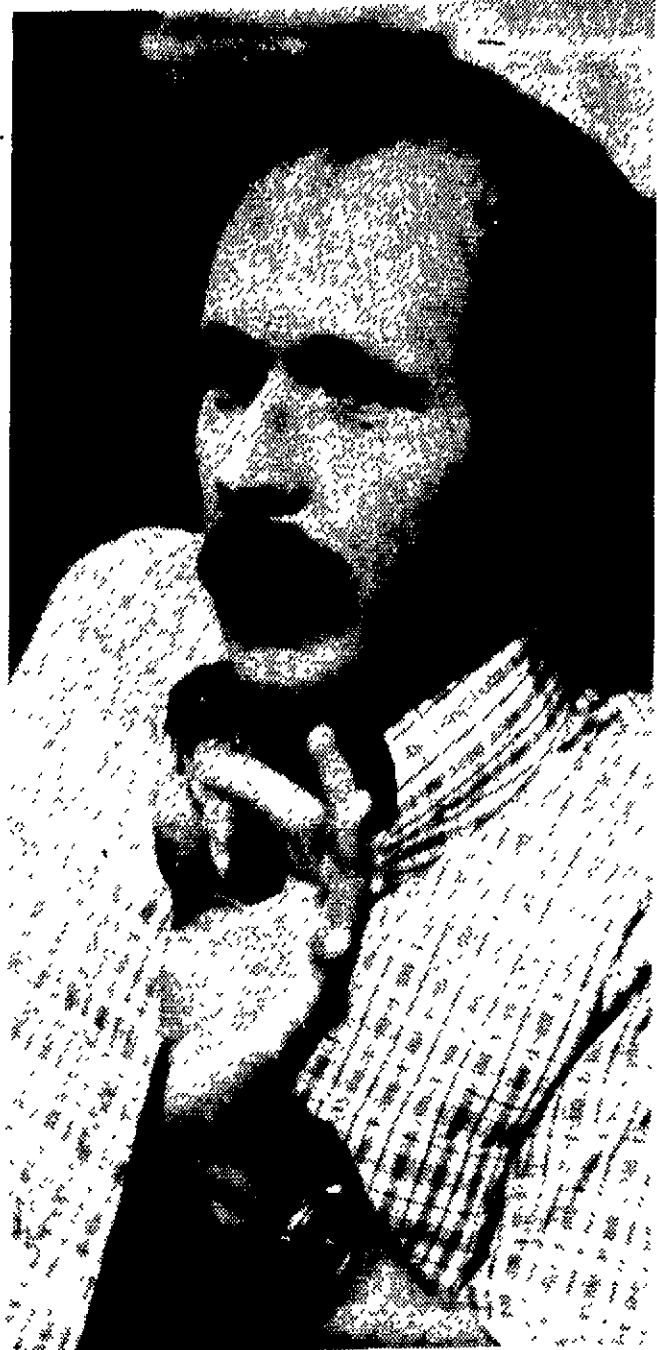

If NPPD rejects the offer, Allman wrote, "all items would then continue in the confused, warlike, progress-impeding fashion as we all know they will."

The purchase price for NPPD transmission facilities in the LES service area would be $12.1 million, Allman said.

While the sale of all transmission facilities in the area would represent a financial gain for NPPD, he said, it would provide "more transmission independence for LES than NPPD has offered."

LES, Allman said, believes that "by making payment to NPPD for acquisition of transmission lines and by making capital contributions to the system which are paid for by LES ratepayers, LES is entitled to a rate which recognizes its financial contribution to the transmission system as well as relieving NPPD of its corresponding financial responsibility."

Family Planner's Aim—Awareness

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

"People think we're an abortion clinic," said Steve White, executive director of Planned Parenthood. "Or else they think we're here to hand out pills and nothing else."

White's goal is to change all that and make the community more aware of what Planned Parenthood is doing, what it can do.

"Nebraska has no public (official) statement on family planning," White observed. "It is not a recognized medical service."

Counselors, Refers

Although Planned Parenthood counsels persons with problem pregnancies and makes abortion referrals, White said of the agency's official stand on abortion, "We don't believe it's a method of contraception. But we do believe in freedom of choice and making the therapeutic conditions available."

White, 31, came to Lincoln from Planned Parenthood of Kansas City, Mo., where he was clinic director. He has a master's degree in counseling from the University of Kansas at Kansas City.

He and his wife of nine years "have both come to the conclusion we really don't want any children."

Greg Farstrup, former director of Planned Parenthood, resigned to attend the University of Hawaii in hopes of becoming involved in international family planning.

The new director has been at the helm a mere three weeks and already has far-reaching plans for expanding the medical-counseling agency's programs.

Fourth Clinic Planned

To make Planned Parenthood's services more accessible, White plans to initiate a fourth birth control clinic at the Adams Street location and satellite clinics at the Open Door Health Center and in other low-income areas.

He also plans to reactivate the vasectomy clinic, dropped because of loss of funding.

Although less than 20 men took advantage of the clinic's voluntary sterilization, the new executive director feels the services still should be made available to low-income persons.

Sexuality Workshops

Human sexuality is another of his concerns. White is contemplating the idea of setting up workshops for professionals who deal with the human sexuality needs of their clients. Another of his goals is to investigate the field of sexuality for the aged.

"I would like to expand our educational services to different groups in the community, including the high schools," he said. "We haven't been called yet this (school) year which, to me, isn't good."

White also is investigating applying for a National Institute of Mental Health grant for a study to be undertaken jointly by Planned Parenthood and the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. The study would focus on the sociological and psychological motivations that influence selection of a birth control method.

276 Patients Monthly

Planned Parenthood here serves an average of 276 patients monthly.

It receives federal Health, Education and Welfare funds through the Maternal Child Health Division of the State Department of Health.

Asked about the possible impact of a recent Senate attempt to prohibit federal funds paying for abortions, White said, "The only effect on us, since we do not do abortions, would be to have volunteer counselors for problem pregnancies."

Hruska Voices Support Of Court Boundary Shift

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., said Tuesday the 5th and 9th Circuit Courts of Appeals should be realigned to equally distribute their case loads.

He testified before the Senate subcommittee on improvements in the judicial machinery, of which he is the ranking Republican member, in support of proposals to shift the boundary lines of the circuits.

"The workload of the courts of appeals continues to grow," he said. "Statistics for fiscal 1974 ... show the filing in the courts of appeals have again increased, this time by 5%," he said.

"The rise has been little short of dramatic," Hruska said of the case in increases in the fifth and ninth circuits.

"None of these proposals would diminish the needs for realignment of the fifth and ninth circuits," he said.

Included in the 9th Circuit are Alaska, Arizona, California, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Idaho, Washington, Hawaii and Guam.

Three bills have been introduced to redraw the circuit boundaries.

Margaret Allen, 101, Succumbs

Broken Bow (AP) — Funeral services are scheduled here Thursday morning for Margaret A. Allen, 101, of Broken Bow.

Mrs. Allen died Monday at a rest home here.

A native of Ireland, Mrs. Allen was born May 21, 1873.

After coming to this county, she taught school for 36 years in the Lincoln area.

Mental Board Meets

The regular monthly meeting of the Region V Mental Retardation Services Board will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Lancaster Office for Mental Retardation, 2202 So. 11th.

Farmer Killed By Hay Baler

Central City (AP) — A rural Hardville man, Kevin Irwin, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Irwin, was killed Monday night in a hay baling accident.

Officials said Irwin was working alone in a farm field about four miles southeast of here when he apparently became entangled in the baler.

Irwin's body was not discovered until early Tuesday morning.

NU QB Decision Soon: Osborne

By BOB OWENS

Star Sports Editor

Uncertainty still prevails on Nebraska's choice to open at quarterback Saturday when the Cornhuskers face Northwestern in an intersectional football game.

Coach Tom Osborne, however, said after Tuesday's practice a decision will have to be made Wednesday whether the injured Dave Humm or his backup, Earl Everett, would handle the duties against the Wildcats.

"Dave was a little better today, but he'll have to get out tomorrow," Osborne said. "It's a real nip and tuck as to whether he can play at all."

Everett, who took over when Humm was injured late in the first quarter last Saturday at Wisconsin, has been working at the No. 1 job Monday and Tuesday.

Timing drills have suffered, however, because Tony Davis hasn't taken part in the practices as he recovers from a slight knee strain and wingback Don Westbrook, though he worked Tuesday, still is limping on an ankle that was strained against Wisconsin.

Jeff Moran has been the No. 1 back in place of John O'Leary, who will miss the next four weeks with a broken jaw.

Osborne said very little in the way of changes have been made to the Husker offense because of the likelihood Everett, a runner more than a passer, would replace Humm, whose abilities are just the opposite of Everett's.

Northwestern, meanwhile, faced even more problems preparing for the Huskers because of a multitude of injuries suffered since fall camp began.

Paul Maly, Greg Boykin, and Pete Shaw, called by coach John Pont "the three best athletes on the team," definitely are out of the game. Maly, a nose guard, was in on three plays in the season opener before breaking a bone in his left foot. Boykin and Shaw haven't played at all, Boykin because of a cracked fibula in his left leg, and Shaw because of a sprained knee.

Northwestern lost starting offensive left guard Mark Ruff with an ankle sprain against Notre Dame and he has been ruled out of Saturday's game.

Quarterback Mitch Anderson suffered a slight shoulder separation and Pont said a decision wouldn't be made until Thursday or Friday on his availability. Flanker Wayne Frederickson pulled a thigh muscle against Notre Dame and looks doubtful now, according to Pont.

Dewayne Shambley has moved from right to left guard in place of Ruff and Scott Reynolds, Ruff's backup last week, has been switched to the right side.

The Cornhuskers dropped from fourth place in the press association polls announced Tuesday. They're now rated ninth in the UPI coaches poll and tenth in the AP writer's poll.

Senior Men's Tourney Slated

A field of 190 golfers, one of them 81 years old, will tee off Wednesday for the 10th annual Nebraska Senior Men's Golf Championship at Lincoln Hillcrest Country Club.

The oldest golfer is Walt Madden who is competing for the first time.

Included in the field are, three time winner Gene Chadwell of Lincoln, four time champion Ben Cowdery of Omaha and Fred Melchors of Omaha.

The eldest golfer entered is Walt Madden of Schuyler, who is 81.

Carl Bolt of Schuyler, a director of the sponsoring Nebraska Senior Golf Association is 80.

The tournament is open to golfers over 50. All past winners are entered, including Ben Cowdery, who took the championship four years in a row from 1969-72.

He did not enter last year when the title was won by Pete Czura of Lincoln.

WFL's Shaky Position Crumbles Even Further

By The Associated Press

The already shaky position of Gary Davidson's young World Football League crumbled further Tuesday in a lightning fast series of developments.

It was learned Tuesday night that the New York Stars would be moved to Charlotte, N.C. Wednesday after being purchased from Robert Schmetz by Boston investor Upton Bell.

Bell had been a major factor in the attempt to move the Detroit Wheels to the southern city, but Charlotte Chamber of Commerce spokesman Bill Hensley revealed earlier in the day that the transaction had fallen through and that "plans are being made to bring another, much better team to Charlotte."

The deal with Detroit may well have collapsed because of the desperate financial situation of the Wheels' ownership. While the Stars were beating the Wheels 37-7 in their final game at New York's Downing Stadium Tuesday night, it was made public that the losers had filed for bankruptcy in United States District Court—claiming debts of $2.5 million.

The Stars have scheduled a major news conference for 10 a.m., EDT, Wednesday, while a similar gathering has been set for 3 p.m., EDT, in Charlotte.

Schmetz had frequently denied reports that the Stars were for sale. "I am not actively looking to sell this franchise," he had said, adding it would take an offer for "more than I think the team is worth" to change his mind.

The transfer marked the end of a shattering week for the WFL, which started last Wednesday when the Houston Texans announced their move to Shreveport, La., and changed their nickname to the Steamers.

Meanwhile, in Jacksonville, Fla., the league had been forced to step in for the financially struggling Sharks ownership and assume control of the operation. Commissioner Davidson assured the players they would receive WFL paychecks before Wednesday's scheduled game against the Southern California Sun in Anaheim, Calif.

"He also assured the players that all money due on their contracts is guaranteed by the league," added WFL vice president Don Andersen.

No sale price for the Stars was reported, and team officials were unavailable for comment.

Sagging attendance and the cost of renovation at New York's 27,000-seat home base had put a severe drain on the resources of Schmetz, who also owns parts of the World Hockey Association New England Whalers and National Basketball Association Boston Celtics. He confided that he expected to lose $1 million this year.

A source close to the situation told The Associated Press a new franchise would be brought to New York when renovations are complete at Yankee Stadium in 1976.

Pirates Regain Lead By Hitting Cards, 7-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "This time of the year, you've just got to play with pain and forget about it. There's no tomorrow," massive Willie Stargell said.

Pittsburgh's slugging captain, hit on the right wrist by a sixth-inning pitch, shook off the injury and pounded a three-run homer in the 7-3 trouncing of St. Louis Tuesday night that moved the Pirates past the Cardinals into first place in the National League East.

"I wasn't even thinking about it hurting," said Stargell, who powered an 0-2 delivery over the fence to help boost the Pirates one-half game ahead of the Cards.

"But tomorrow night's a bigger game yet," he said. "I figure right now we're in first place, but it doesn't mean too much yet."

Dave Parker's two-run pinch-single was another key hit—but St. Louis catcher Ted Simmons called Stargell's homer the decisive blow.

"There are some things you can look back on in a game like this," Simmons said, "but the big blow was Willie's."

"Rather than being behind 4-2," Simmons said, "it was 7-2 and then you've got to score in a hurry. We'd had time to rally if it hadn't been for the home run."

Left-hander John Curtis, 9-14, stymied Pittsburgh on three hits before singles by Rennie Stennett and Manny Sanguillen woke up the Bucs in the sixth.

Stargell was hit by a pitch to load the bases with one out and Stennett scored on Richie Zisk's grounder. Walks to Bob Robertson and Richie Hebner shoved the Pirates on top 2-1 before Parker got his hit.

In the seventh, Stennett again touched off a rally with a lead-off hit.

Kaline Collects 3,000th Hit

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Al Kaline of the Detroit Tigers became the 12th player in major league history to collect 3,000 hits in a career Tuesday night when he drove a fourth inning double down the rightfield line against the Baltimore Orioles.

The game immediately was stopped, the ball retrieved and taken with the bat Kaline used to a box adjacent to the Tigers' dugout.

There it was presented to American League President Lee MacPhail, who will take them to Cooperstown, N.Y., to be added to the Hall of Fame collection of baseball memorabilia. Bowie Kuhn, the commissioner of baseball, was not at the game.

Kaline's hit, the 139th of his, his 22nd and last season in the major leagues, came on Dave McNally's first pitch in the fourth inning with Detroit leading 1-0.

Typically, the embarrassed Kaline had to be coaxed from second base by officials and a cheering crowd of about 11,000 over to MacPhail's box. There Kaline had a deep smile of satisfaction on his face as he talked briefly with Detroit General Manager Jim Campbell.

"It seemed like a great big cloud had been lifted as soon as I got it," said Kaline, who also singled his next time up for hit No. 3,001.

"I'm really happy, proud, pleased, to get the 3,000th hit off a pitcher like Dave McNally."

"I was hoping his premonition would come true," Kaline added. "He (McNally) said in the middle of the season, and it was printed today, that the hit was going to be off him."

Bobby Grich came over from second base to shake Kaline's hand and say, "Congratulations. You've had a hell of a career," and shortstop Mark Belanger did likewise.

"I said, 'Let's get going, these guys are fighting for a pennant and they don't want to stand around—they want to play,'" Kaline said of his feelings over the delay.

He also confessed to saying "a little prayer of thanks" at second base "for giving me a chance, a strong body and a chance to play so many years."

"This ranks above the batting championship but nothing will ever surpass the thrill of winning the World Series."

Kaline had grounded out to short on his first trip to the plate, but his hit never was in doubt from the moment he swung.

Although Kaline became the 12th player in the major leagues to reach the 3,000 hit plateau, he was the first in the AL in 49 years, and also the first to do it since the establishment of the designated hitter rule in the American League last season.

All of the previous 11 had to play defense, too, just like Kaline did for the first 21 seasons of his career.

His accomplishment is as distinguished by those who didn't make it as it is by those 11 who previously made 3,000 hits.

The last to do it, before Kaline, was Roberto Clemente of the Pittsburgh Pirates, who got his 3,000th—and last—hit in the next-to-last game of the 1972 season.

But players like Ted Williams, Babe Ruth, Rogers Hornsby, Lou Gehrig, George Sisler, Luke Appling and Frankie Frisch never made it. All of them, however—like the 11 previous members of the 3,000 hit club, except for Mays and Aaron who aren't eligible yet—are in the Hall of Fame.

Kaline has not played a single inning in the field this season. Some say this detracts from his accomplishment, but Kaline says, "I really don't care what people say."

"Self-centered people are the only ones who worry about what other people say about them," he said. "I knew the only way I was going to get it was if I was going to be the DH."

"I think he would have gotten it even without the rule," says Buddy Blattner, former player and now a broadcaster for the Kansas City Royals. "He would have played first base. He's a pretty good first baseman."

"I don't think he's embarrassing himself," said Brooks Robinson, who may be only a couple of seasons away from collecting 3,000 hits himself for the Baltimore Orioles.

"I know he's got a bad knee and can't play in the field any more but I don't think it takes anything away from it that he's getting them as a designated hitter," Robinson said.

Sevigne Prepares Harriers

By KEN HAMBLETON

Star Sports Writer

Nebraska cross country coach Frank Sevigne is preparing his young harrier squad for a dual meet against Wisconsin at Madison, Wisc. Saturday.

"We're an extremely young team, but we have potential. Time will tell," said Sevigne. "This year we have to run a five mile course and it will take some time to adjust."

The NCAA cross country distance was four miles last year.

"I don't think the new distance will hurt us, and actually I don't think it is going to make that much difference," Sevigne continued. "Cross country is sometimes just a means to get into shape for track."

"Our workouts are just longer than last year and with a young squad like this one we'll have to wait and see how much talent we have," he added.

Keith Whittaker, Gale Wheeler and Matt Reckmeyer, all sophomores combine the bulk of the team along with junior walk-ons Dennis Katzer and David Johnston.

"The other two positions on the squad haven't been decided on yet due to injuries to freshmen Harold Steltzer and Leif Olsson of Sweden," said Sevigne.

"It will be a tough opener with Wisconsin, who is always a tough Big 10 opponent. They are talking about taking the Big 10 already," Sevigne said.

Bad Year For Quarterbacks

When you notice what is happening to college quarterbacks this season it's easy to see why the professionals have shied away from going to the Veer-T or Wishbone offenses which require the quarterback to carry the football a lot or cause him to be hit on just about every play.

The many quarterback injuries all across the country also might explain the tremendous number of upsets last Saturday because teams are having to go with inexperienced signal-callers.

In the Big Eight Conference, already Iowa State has lost Buddy Hardeman for the season because of knee surgery to repair damage suffered on the first play last Saturday against Washington.

At Nebraska, Dave Humm has a hip pointer which probably will sideline him for at least one game. He was injured when he was hit after pitching out to I-Back Jeff Moran on the option play at Wisconsin.

Kansas State's Steve Grogan is banged up with a pinched neck nerve and that can't help the Wildcats' already meager offense.

In pre-season practice, Missouri's two quarterbacks missed a lot of work because of injuries. Both Ray Smith and Steve Pisarkiewicz were out at the same time. That could be the reason the Tigers are having such an awful time getting their offense rolling.

Six Idled In Big Ten

Even Oklahoma hasn't escaped the QB injury jinx, but so far it hasn't cost the Sooners a victory. Steve Davis has been knocked out twice, the second time in the narrow win over Baylor. He's had a week off and should be 100 per cent for Utah State Saturday.

The quarterback situation in Big Ten camps has been equally as bad with no less than six of them idled at one time or another. Most notable was Michigan's Dennis Franklin, who missed the opener with a virus, not an injury.

Iowa lost returning regular Butch Caldwell before the season started with an appendectomy. Illinois had planned to start Jim Kopatz, but he went down with an injury before the opener and still hasn't gotten back.

Indiana lost Bob Kramer in the opener and now Purdue has Mike Terrizzi with a bruised left shoulder with Notre Dame coming up Saturday in South Bend.

Mitch Anderson of Northwestern has a slight shoulder separation received against the Irish and his backup, Kim Girkins, received a hip pointer in relief of Anderson in that game.

Five Athletes Share Prep Player Of Week Award

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Editor

In Nebraska's two largest high school classification ranks, 100 yards rushing seems to be the "magic" figure for which to strive in one game.

But in the three smaller school ranks, the "magic" figure is more like 200 yards rushing in a single game.

No less than five athletes achieved 200 yards rushing last week and therefore share the team outscored Guide Rock, 62-42, in eight-man offensive explosion.

Bob Schilling, Bladen — Junior 6-0, 200-pound halfback rushed for 249 yards on 22 carries in team's 30-20 win over Roseland. He had touchdown runs of 52, 57 and 74 yards, caught a 23-yard touchdown pass, ran for two extra points and was credited with six tackles.

Others who will receive Player of the Week cards include:

Ralph Kuwamoto, Lincoln High — Senior quarterback, on crutches Thursday and part of Friday with an ankle sprain, rushed for 133 yards on 16 carries and scored a touchdown to key ninth-rated Links to 27-14 win at Scottsbluff.

J. P. Ruzicka, Scottsbluff — Against Lincoln High's defense — which had checked its first two opponents to a minus 12 yards rushing — he accumulated 124 yards on 22 carries, almost exclusively between tackle.

Kim Scoles, Mead — Making his first start at quarterback, he hit 11 of 19 passes for 222 yards and five touchdowns in Raiders' win over Fort Calhoun.

Steve Schumacher, Columbus — Senior I-back rushed for 145 yards on 17 carries and scored seventh-ranked Discoverers' first three touchdowns in 33-13 win over Beatrice.

Kevin Gonnerman, Gresham — Junior quarterback's eight completions in nine passing attempts accounted for 195 yards and four touchdowns in win over Bradshaw.

Tod Dorshorst, Hay Springs — Had punt returns of 65 and 82 yards while rushing for 141 yards and scoring four touchdowns as team whipped Hemingford.

Tom Doggett, Lincoln Plus X — Junior I-back rushed for game-leading 161 yards on 27 carries in Thunderbolts' 26-12 win over Class A McCook.

Kevin Einspahr, Hildreth — Rushed for 137 yards on 27 carries, scored two touchdowns, made 13 tackles and punted for 37-yard average in team's 14-6 win over Sumner.

Charles Green, Omaha Benson — Bunnie speedster, who ran a wind-aided .09.6 in the 100 last spring, scored on an 87-yard screen pass with 4:09 remaining in the game to give No. 1-rated Benson a 14-7 win over Creighton Prep.

Don Lubeck, Grand Island — With the Islanders nursing an 8-7 lead late in the third quarter, he scored on a 55-yard punt return. He then caught 45 and 38-yard touchdowns passes within three minutes of each other in the fourth quarter as GI hit Fremont, 34-7.

Mick Meyer, Gering — Second-team wingback snagged pass and raced 89 yards with 2:42 remaining in final quarter for game's only touchdown in 6-0 win over Sidney.

York Defeats Pius X Golfers

York's girls golf team defeated Pius X, 124-127, at the Jim Ager Memorial golf course Tuesday afternoon.

Lo Cunningham of York paced the field with a 35 for nine holes followed by Patti White of Pius

York 124, Pius X 127

1. Lo Cunningham, York, 35; 2. Patti White, Pius X, 38; 3. Patti Meenan, York, 42; 4. Katie Waite, Pius X, 44; 5. Julie Clifford, Pius X, 45.

They include:
Doug Strothkamp, Geneva — Sophomore back rushed for 237 yards on 30 carries and scored a pair of touchdowns to lead eighth-rated Class C team to 19-0 win over Tri-County.

Mike Bird, Falls City Sacred Heart — This 6-3, 208-pound senior played tackle in team's first two games. He switched to I-back last week and rushed for 225 yards on 16 carries as team whipped Sterling. On his first varsity carry, he zipped 71 yards for the first of his three touchdowns.

Bruce Spansel, Anselmo-Merna — Quarterback rushed for 222 yards on 22 carries and had touchdown runs of 72, 21 and 16 yards in Class C team's 26-20 win over North Loup-Scottia. He also hit 3 of 6 passes for 40 yards.

Steve Burson, Giltner — Rushed for 215 yards on 26 carries and scored six touchdowns on runs of 1, 3, 3, 4, 28 and 51 yards as ninth-rated

Coach Larry Romjue's Nebraska golf team will open the 1974-75 season at the All-College Golf Classic Wednesday through Friday in Oklahoma City at the Lincoln Park West golf course.

Steve King is the only returning letterman to the NU team as last year's leaders Dan Bahensky, Gary Teel and Tom Sieckmann are not returning to this year's squad.

Bahensky and Teel graduated. King, the only senior on the team besides Robert Meyer will lead the Huskers in the 54-hole event against Oklahoma State, Kansas, Missouri, Southern Methodist, Arizona State, Texas Tech, Tulsa, Oklahoma, Oklahoma Central, and Oral Roberts.

Last year's tournament ended with Oklahoma scrambling from 11 strokes back to shade Louisiana State by just one stroke.

"This will be a rebuilding year for us, and I expect the rebuilding to take two or three years," said Romjue.

"The loss of Sieckmann really hurts us, because it will probably cost us around 10 strokes per match," said Romjue referring to the sophomore's transfer to Oklahoma State.

Sieckmann, winner of both the state medal and match men's tournaments, had been thinking about leaving since early this summer when he mentioned it following a win in the State Amateur tournament.

BASKETBALL

Roger Brown a fourtime ABA All-Star has signed with the Memphis Sounds of the ABA.

Veteran forward Don Adams signed a one-year contract with the Detroit Pistons, ending a four-day holdout.

Adam's signing leaves veteran guard Dave Bing, the team's captain, as the only player absent from the Pistons' training camp.

The Boston Celtics reported that no progress has been made in getting suspended guard Don Chaney to report to the team's training camp.

The Denver Nuggets of the ABA are not negotiating with former Marquette center Maurice Lucas, club spokesman Ted Malik said.

Malick said a report in the Chicago Tribune saying that Lucas had agreed to terms with Denver was incorrect, although the athlete was flying to Denver for other reasons.

Wilt Chamberlain, whose $1.8 million contract with the San Diego Conquistadors runs until 1976, is back with the ABA team, but the former Laker center is just talking, not playing or coaching.

George Hill resigned as head basketball coach at The Citadel and his assistant, Les Robinson, was named to succeed him.

FOOTBALL

Holy Cross safety John Provost was named National College Back of the Week from the Associated Press for his performance in the 45-10 clobbering of Brown last Saturday.

Provost, a 5-10, 180 pound senior, returned two punts for touchdowns of 59 and 85 yards, and intercepted four passes for a total of 59 yards.

Others considered for the honors included: quarterbacks Gregg Bolig of Wisconsin, Tony Dunny of Minnesota; running backs Laverne Smith of Kansas, and Tony Dorsett of Pitt.

Coach George Allen of the Washington Redskins claims the team last Sunday on an illegal play.

But Allen acknowledges there is nothing he can do about it now to change the St. Louis 17-10 victory.

Allen claims the films of the game show that the Cardinals first touchdown on the last play of the first quarter when Cards' tackle Bob Rowe grabbed lineman Len Hauss' facemask helping other defensive linemen a chance to sack Washington quarterback Bill Kilmer, who fumbled, allowing Ron Yankowski to pick up the ball and run 71 yards for a touchdown.

The Portland Storm of the WFL signed former Kansas City Chiefs running back Robert Holmes, who was recently released by the San Diego Chargers.

Despite a hairline fracture in his right forearm San Francisco 49ers' strong safety Mel Phillips is expected to start in next Sunday's game against Cincinnati.

The former Houston Texans, will now be referred to as the Shreveport Steamer the WFL announced.

Running back Glen Bonner, the big surprise in the San Diego Charger backfield may be out of the lineup for the Miami game next Sunday due to a shoulder injury.

The Cleveland Browns acquired tight end Jim Thaxton from the Chargers in return for a future draft choice.

O. J. Simpson has a bruised left knee to go with an ankle sprain and is listed as a doubtful starter in this Sunday's meeting between the Buffalo Bills and the New York Jets.

The WFL has taken over the financially troubled Jacksonville Sharks' franchise.

A Moose interrupted Junior High School football practice at Hooksett's Memorial School in New Jersey Monday night when he crossed the brightly lit field and ran about 75 yards down field.

The goal line run by the moose briefly halted the practice session of the junior high students who were being coached by an advertising executive, Gordon "Moose" Moore. Moore got his nickname from playing football a few years ago.

Tackle Jerome Hodges, former All-American from Kansas and defensive end Douglas Troszak of Michigan have been granted five-day trial workouts with the Ottawa Rough Riders of the CFL.

BASEBALL

The baseball season ended for veteran pitcher Wilbur Wood after the knuckle-balling left hander suffered a bruised left leg against the Oakland A's Saturday night putting him out of action for at least two weeks.

The Atlanta Braves announced the promotion of Eddie Robinson to executive vice president and the assignment of former manager Eddie Mathews as a special assignment scout for the NL club.

The New York Yankees recalled pitcher Dick Wood, catcher Jim Deidel, infielder Fernando Gonzalez, and outfielder Terry Whitfield from their Syracuse farm club in the International League.

Rochester won the International League's Governor Cup series after downing Syracuse, 5-1 in the seventh game of the series.

American League president Lee MacPhail fined Milwaukee Brewers' catcher Darrell Porter an undisclosed sum of money and suspended him for three days for going after a fan in the stands during the seventh inning of Monday's second game with the Indians in Cleveland.

Dorsett Nearing Rushing Record

Pittsburgh (AP) — Though just two games into his sophomore season, Tony Dorsett needs only 23 yards to surpass Marshall Goldberg as the University of Pittsburgh's all-time career rushing leader.

"Teams are out to stop me this year, but I'll be doing my best," said the sleek 172-pound Dorsett, who'll lead Pitt, 2-0, against Southern California, 1-1, here Saturday.

Goldberg, a 185-pounder from Elkins, W. Va., helped Pitt to a national title in 1937 and set a Pitt record of 1,957 rushing yards in three seasons under the late Coach Jock Sutherland.

Pitt's football fortunes fell off sharply in the '60s and early '70s, but the Panthers are fanned eighth nationally this season and no player has contributed more to Pitt's revival than Dorsett.

As a freshman last season, he earned All-America honors by rushing for 1,686 yards in 12 games, including 265 against Northwestern and 209 against Notre Dame.

Though held to 81 yards in this season's opening victory over Florida State, he piled up 168 last weekend and scored two touchdowns to lead Pitt to a win over Georgia Tech.

"Against Tech, I wanted to prove to people I could run," said Dorsett. "I wanted to show them there wasn't anything to that sophomore jinx."

Last season, Dorsett carried the ball 318 times and averaged 29 carries per game. Goldberg had 361 carries for his entire career and averaged 12 per game.

"Actually, I'm astounded the record has lasted this long with how much the game has changed," Goldberg said in a phone interview from Chicago, where he is now president of Goldberg-Emmerman Corp.

Indeed, there is little ground for comparing Dorsett and Goldberg.

Dorsett is the tailback in Pitt's I-formation, and though a strong blocker, his main job is to run with the football. Goldberg, by comparison, was a two-way player in the pre-face mask days of Pitt's single-wing.

"I played halfback for my first two seasons, fullback for the last," said Goldberg, who played 10 seasons in the pros.

"In addition, I returned punts and kickoffs, and I played safety on defense. And I was a blocker. Actually it was my blocking that got me a starting job as a sophomore."

Dorsett earned a starting job in the first scrimmage of his freshman season.

Piniella Lauds NY Teammates

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the New York Yankees go on to win the American League pennant, Lou Piniella said Tuesday, an "impossible situation" will be created in determining the league's Most Valuable Player.

"I think so many different people have contributed so much to this ballclub, I feel it would be an impossible situation to single out one individual and say he's the most valuable," said the Yankee left fielder, a candidate for the award himself with a .306 batting average prior to Tuesday night's doubleheader against Boston.

"I don't think anybody on the ballclub is particularly worried about it now, though. Our main objective is to win this division and hopefully the American League pennant after this."

"There's plenty of confidence we can do it, but you still have to win on the field."

With eight games to play, the Yankees carried a one-game advantage over Baltimore in the American League East.

Nebraska's First National Park Proposed

By TOM VINT

Outdoor Writer

Scottsbluff — Nebraska's first national park is a distinct possibility according to John Rosenow, director of the Nebraska Department of Economic Development's Travel and Tourism Division.

Rosenow, speaking to the Scottsbluff-Gering Chamber of Commerce here Monday, is feeling out public opinion toward a Trails West National Park along Nebraska's Hwy. 26 from Ogallala to Fort Laramie, Wyo.

The national park proposal would include Nebraska public landmarks Ash Hollow State Historical Park, Courthouse and Jailhouse Rocks, Scottsbluff National Monument, Fort Laramie National Historical Site, and the Chimney Rock National Historical Site, as primary interest stops, according to Rosenow.

In a written proposal presented to the Scottsbluff-Gering group, Rosenow points out: "The greatest single opportunity for development of national significance in the region lies in the preservation and realization of a cohesive Trails West National Historic Park or Route, tying together the key Overland Trail sites from Ash Hollow to Fort Laramie, Wyo. The concentration of significant historical resources along this segment of the trails is unequalled anywhere else."

"We're actually proposing a national park," Rosenow stated. "There would be two basic benefits to a national park. The first would be the coordinated development and interpretation of the state's areas would provide a better public area for tourism. The second benefit would be the use of the name national park, which, in itself draws tourism."

According to Rosenow, the plan is now in its infant stage. A study has been completed on the Trails West proposal, then public interest will be tested, as in the Scottsbluff meeting. The next step toward formation of a national park would be a meeting with the congressional delegation to construct and present a bill to Congress for the formation of a national park. The bill is either accompanied by or followed by a feasibility report by the National Park Service before approval can be made.

Rosenow indicated no timetable has been set for the bill presentation as public opinion will be registered to determine if the park should be further pursued.

The proposal is being viewed and studied by the Nebraska Travel and Recreation Interagency Council. The Council is a combination of the Department of Economic Development, the State Office of Planning and Programming, the Game and Parks Commission, the State Historical Society, the Department of Roads and the Natural Resources Commission.

The coordinated effort will attempt to develop the Trails West National Park via four major areas along the North Platte River and old Oregon Trail regions.

Access roads to points of interest, recreational access to the river and expanded observation of rest areas and observation sites are being considered.

The first major area of development is the Scottsbluff-Gering area. Upgrading and expanding of the Scottsbluff National Monument, the Robbeaux Pass and trading post, the Wildcat Hills State Recreation Area, a buffer zone around Chimney Rock, the North Platte Valley Historical Society Museum, the Lake Minatare State Recreation Area and Fort Mitchell Historical site would be involved in the plan.

The second development area would include the Bridgeport area with Chimney Rock visitor complex, Courthouse and Jailhouse Rocks, the Mud Springs Pony Express Site, the Bridgeport Station Recreational Area, access points to the North Platte River and the Pioneer Trails Museum.

The third improvement area would be the Oshkosh-Lewellen area with Ash Hollow State Park, river and trail access sites, the Oregon Trail route identification, further development of the Crescent Lake National Wildlife Refuge, and marking the Blue Water Battlefield area.

The final development area would include the Lake Ogallala and Lake McConaughy areas with upgrading of recreational facilities and access areas to increase public usage yet maintain a healthy ecology in the area.

"Right now, we're very much in the concept stage," Rosenow pointed out. "We're approaching these people at an early stage to monitor feeling, not coming to them at the last minute and telling them this is their last choice. This represents only the beginning of our overall state plan."

Hampton Streak State's Longest

By RANDY YORK

Prep Sports Editor

Webster defines tradition as "an inherited pattern of thought or action."

Hampton football coach Jim Connick would agree with that definition.

Tradition, he strongly believes, has played a big part in his Hawks constructing the state's longest football winning streak at 22 games.

Although Hampton was not projected as a power within the Crossroads Conference this fall, the Hawks have won all three of their games.

The latest was a 28-24 win at Shelby, previously second-ranked in eight-man competition. Hampton used the victory to catapult from 10th to fifth in the ratings.

"Tradition is important," insists Connick. "These kids have decided they kind of like to win. They were real impressed with the last couple years and decided they'd like to carry it out."

"You can see the pride in everything they do," adds Connick. "It's there in the school work. The town's behind them. They have a lot going for them."

Connick downplays the pressure a winning streak seems to build. "Right now we're using it to our psychological advantage," he says. "This team won't fold for anyone. If someone wants that winning streak, they better be ready to play."

Connick concedes his players

"were a little more confident than I was" for the Shelby game. But, he points out, "they got behind, 24-20, halfway through the fourth quarter. Fifty-four seconds later, they stuck one in the end zone to really show their colors."

According to Connick, "I'm glad no one was looking for us coming into the season. Personally, I felt that was the best way. Our kids are learning every week. They're really coming. They really like the game of football."

Dean Klute, last year's No. 1 wingback, was the only returning starter. He shifted to quarterback. Against Shelby, he hit 4 of 8 passes for 72 yards and a touchdown and rushed 26 times for 67 yards and two touchdowns.

Four of Hampton's eight starters are underclassmen. Junior end Greg Erickson "has been our big surprise," according to Connick. "He's done a whole of a job."

Hampton can't waste any time dwelling on the Shelby win, accomplished with Shelby's two starting running backs on the sidelines because of injury and sickness.

The Hawks face an equally critical challenge Friday night at Gresham, which enters the top 10 this week at the No. 8 spot.

Gresham has beaten Monroe (42-14), Marquette (50-14) and Bradshaw (58-0). Connick's hoping tradition overcomes that firepower.

Nebraska Prep Ratings

Class D

- |                            |                           |
|----------------------------|---------------------------|
| 1—Alliance St. Agnes (3-0) | 6—Shickley (2-0)          |
| 2—Medicine Valley (3-0)    | 7—Callaway (3-0)          |
| 3—Loomis (3-0)             | 8—Gurley (3-0)            |
| 4—Fairmont (2-0)           | 9—Wolbach (2-0)           |
| 5—Lynn (3-0)               | 10—Spalding Academy (2-0) |

Eight-Man

- |                     |                   |
|---------------------|-------------------|
| 1—East Butler (2-0) | 6—Wheatland (3-0) |
| 2—Adams (3-0)       | 7—Barnes (3-0)    |
| 3—Farman (3-0)      | 8—Gresham (3-0)   |
| 4—Bartlett (2-0)    | 9—Giltner (3-0)   |
| 5—Hampton (2-0)     | 10—Shelby (2-1)   |

Comment — List of ratings challengers includes Arthur (3-0), Bartley (2-0), Beaver Valley (2-0), Brady (2-0), Cedar Bluffs (2-0), Chambers (1-0), Cody (2-0), Eastis (3-0), Lewiston (3-0), Tryon (3-0) and Yutan (3-0). Elgin (2-1) pressed No. 4 Bartlett and also is considered ratings material. Top game this week is No. 5 Hampton, 28-24 upset victor over Shelby last week, at top 10 newcomer Gresham.

Dyas: Hike Social Security

Democratic congressional nominee Hess Dyas Tuesday called for "annual cost-of-living increases" in Social Security benefits.

"Benefits today fall $2,000 short of what the Department of Labor considers an intermediate level budget for a retired couple," the First District candidate said.

"This places an especially heavy financial burden on older Americans living on fixed incomes."

Rising health costs have "compounded the financial burden" for the elderly, he said.

Dyas favors legislation which would extend Medicare coverage to include out-of-hospital drugs, care of teeth, feet and eyes, hearing aids, preventative medical care and home health aids.

Dyas said he would also support legislation to provide private industry with incentives for hiring senior citizens who wish to continue working.

"I, for one, don't believe that voting against increases in the Social Security rate and other needed services to senior citizens... as (Republican Congressman Charles) Thone has done... can be called good representation of the First District's older people," Dyas said.

"Many senior citizens are facing immediate and critical problems; they cannot afford to be overlooked for two more years."

Thone Calls For Ending Foreign Aid

Washington (AP) — Rep. Charles Thone has called on Congress to "completely scrap our foreign aid programs right now."

The Nebraska Republican said foreign aid "hurts instead of helps the United States abroad."

He cited recent upheavals of governments in Greece and Ethiopia as examples of where American aid had failed to keep governments favorable to the U.S. in power.

"What is the administration's reaction" to the situation in Ethiopia, Thone asked. "It proposes to give another $11.3 million in military aid."

He said America is providing aid to more than 100 nations in the world and said he "would wager that at least half of those countries are non-democratic regimes."

Thone challenged military aid going to Turkey, Mali, Ghana, Liberia, Zaire and Morocco.

Stopping foreign aid now, he said, "would balance the federal budget and help to reduce inflation in both the United States and around the world."

Naturalization Class To Begin Sept. 30

A 10-week citizen education class for people preparing for naturalization will begin 7 p.m., Sept. 30, at the Bryan Center, 1701 S. 40th.

The class by the Southeast Community College is offered free twice a year, according to supervisor Curt Sederburg.

Republicans Go Door To Door

Republicans of all ages were out soliciting support for the GOP at the Lancaster County "Buck Night" Tuesday. Workers collected campaign contributions and distributed political literature door to door. More than

Norfolk Arrival Of Gov. Reagan To Be At 12:30

The time for California Gov. Ronald Reagan's Saturday appearance at Norfolk has been changed, sponsors of the event announced Tuesday.

Reagan will land at the Norfolk Airport at 12:30 p.m.

As a result, the luncheon at the airport will be served at 11:30 a.m., rather than noon, Bob Thomas of Norfolk said.

Soviets To Buy Beef

Wishing Well.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
